where the public may obtain information on this initiative and provide comments to NARA.

NARA is beginning a planning effort that will analyze our current configuration of facilities and determine what kinds of facilities we should have and where they should be located to best serve all our customers and protect the records. This project will happen in several phases over many months and will focus on options that enhance access to records, improve space quality, increase space quantity, and reduce space costs.

DATES: NARA seeks public input into this process. No option, no matter how cost-efficient, will be worth pursuing if it does not further our goal of making it easier for researchers to access the records they need. And no matter what option is decided upon, NARA is committed to maintaining, at a minimum, microfilm research rooms with Internet-accessible computer terminals in the metropolitan areas where regional archives now exist.

Over the course of this planning effort, we will be reaching out to our broad spectrum of customers to get their input through public meetings, surveys, conferences, publications, and the Internet on such issues as where records should be located, what services you need, and what amenities should be offered. All comments and suggestions should be submitted by July 1, 1998.

ADDRESSES: We have a web page devoted to progress on our space plan at <<http://www.nara.gov/nara/speplan.html>>. In addition, we welcome your comments and suggestions via e-mail at space.plan@arch2.nara.gov or by mail to Space Planning Team, Room 4100 (NPOL), National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road, College Park, MD 20740-6001.

Dated: March 25, 1998.
