B. Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Department of Justice certifies that this final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities within the meaning of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., because the amendment sets forth only corrections to internal departmental procedures.

RIN 1018-AE94

Amendment to Appendix III Listing of Bigleaf Mahogany Under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora

AGENCY: Fish and Wildlife Service, Interior.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: This rule announces an amendment to the Appendix III listing of bigleaf mahogany (Swietenia macrophylla) under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES or Convention). The species in the Americas and its logs, sawn wood, and veneer sheets have been included in Appendix III since November 1995, based on an action by the Government of Costa Rica. The Government of Bolivia has recently supplied information to the CITES Secretariat to independently include its population in Appendix III to support its national legislation for the species and the need for cooperation of other CITES countries in controlling the international trade. The Service will consider any comments received on whether to enter a reservation on the Republic of Bolivia's action for its population.

DATES: The change to the Appendix III listing for the Bolivian population of the species as set forth in this rule entered into force on March 19, 1998, under the terms of the Convention. This rule is effective on May 14, 1998.

ADDRESSES: Please send correspondence concerning the amendment announced in this rule to Chief, Office of Scientific Authority, ARLSQ 750; U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; Washington, DC 20240; fax number 703-358-2276.

Express and messenger deliveries should be addressed to Chief, Office of Scientific Authority, Room 750; U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; 4401 North Fairfax Drive; Arlington, Virginia 22203.

The text of the Appendix III notification from the Convention's Secretariat is available on request, and related materials are available for public inspection by appointment from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, at the above address in Arlington, Virginia.

Please send certificate/permit questions or any applications concerning this regulation to Chief, Office of Management Authority; U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; 4401 North Fairfax Drive, Room 700; Arlington, Virginia 22203; fax number 703-358-2281. SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:Background

The Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (TIAS 8249) regulates international trade in certain animal and plant species. The species for which trade in particular specimens is controlled are listed in Appendices I, II, and III to the Convention. Appendix III comprises the list of species subject to regulation within any CITES Party country that has requested the cooperation of the other Parties in regulating international trade in the specified specimens of the species.

This rule revises the list of CITES species that is reproduced in the U.S. Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) at 50 CFR 23.23(f). The current information following COP10 (see below) was published in the Federal Register of August 22, 1997 (62 FR 44627). As advanced by the Government of Bolivia pursuant to Article XVI paragraph 1 of the Convention, the present rule acknowledges that now both Bolivia and Costa Rica have added Swietenia macrophylla (bigleaf mahogany [called mara or caoba]) to Appendix III in support of their domestic conservation measures and need for cooperation of other Parties.

The species continues to be included in Appendix III in the Americas (i.e., South America, Central America, the Caribbean, and North America), including only its logs, sawn wood, and veneer sheets as the parts or derivatives covered by the provisions of the Convention. Thus, products such as finished furniture are excluded. Moreover, export of specimens from plantations located outside the Americas is not regulated. (At COP10 in June 1997, the categories saw-logs, sawn wood, and veneers were revised slightly to the above for several such listings; cf. 62 FR 44627.)

The CITES Secretariat notified all Party countries on December 19, 1997 (in Notification No. 1011), of this addition to Appendix III by Bolivia of their population of this species. In accordance with Article XVI paragraph 2, such an amendment becomes effective 90 days after notification, in this case on March 19, 1998. All the shipments of bigleaf mahogany originating from Bolivia that are exported on or after that date must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation as required by CITES (usually an export permit), which is to be presented upon import to the Party countries.

International trade in Appendix III species and their parts and derivatives that are specified as being included requires the issuance of either an export permit, a certificate of origin, a re-export certificate, or a pre-Convention certificate, by the exporting or the re-exporting Party. An export permit, which signifies that the specimens were not obtained in contravention of the laws of that country for conservation, is required if the shipment originates from the Party that added the species to Appendix III, in this case Bolivia, as well as Costa Rica, which had earlier added the species to Appendix III, effective November 16, 1995 (see Federal Register of February 22, 1996, 61 FR 6793-6795).

Export from the other countries in the Americas requires the issuance of either a certificate from the country of origin, a certificate from the country of re-export, or a pre-Convention certificate (from the country of export). (The species is native from Bolivia and Brazil to Mexico.) These documents legally verify either: (1) that the specimens originated in a non-listing country; (2) that they are being re-exported after a
