

1998. On May 22, 1998, Southern filed an opposition to these requests. For the reasons stated below, we conclude that the extensions should be granted in part and denied in part.

2. ITA, the frequency coordinator for 800 MHz I/LT applications, states that it needs additional time to submit comments in order to poll its membership regarding these issues before it files comments. Nextel states that it needs additional time in order to review and analyze Southern's application for review, which seeks relief similar to that sought in waiver request, and to which the waiver request refers regarding certain arguments. Nextel further states that it did not obtain a copy of the application for review, which was filed under seal, until May 18, 1998. AMTA states that additional time is needed due to the scope of the issues on which comment was sought and the impact that resolution of those issues will have on the Part 90 radio services.

3. In its opposition, Southern does not object to extending the comment period with respect to the related issues on which we invited comment. However, it argues that further delaying resolution of the waiver request itself by extending the comment period is inappropriate, given that it faces an impending implementation deadline. In this connection, Southern contends that unduly delaying resolution of the waiver request could prejudice its efforts to meet such implementation obligations. Southern suggests that this proceeding be bifurcated, with consideration of its waiver request proceeding separately from consideration of the other issues.

4. We conclude that an extension of time would serve the public interest. We believe that providing interested parties additional time to address the issues on which comment has been sought would result in a more comprehensive record that includes the views of various sectors of the private land mobile radio (PLMR) and specialized mobile radio (SMR) communities. We note, however, that our desire for a comprehensive record should be balanced against Southern's request that we not unduly delay resolution of its pending waiver request. Thus, we are concerned about granting the requested thirty-day extensions under the circumstances. Rather, we believe an extension of fifteen (15) days should be adequate to allow the PLMR and SMR communities to respond to the waiver request and comment on the related issues. In addition, we believe that this brief extension of time will not result in a significant delay in the resolution of Southern's pending waiver request. We therefore extend the period of time for filing comments to and including June 12, 1998, and we extend the period for filing reply comments to and including July 6, 1998.

5. It is hereby ordered that pursuant to § 1.46 of the Commission's rules, 47 CFR 1.46, the requests of ITA, Nextel, and AMTA to extend the deadlines for filing comments and reply comments in this proceeding are granted in part and denied in part, to the extent indicated herein.

6. This action is taken under delegated authority pursuant to §§ 0.131 and 0.331 of the Commission's rules, 47 CFR 0.131, 0.331.
