SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

EPA launched a voluntary Consumer Labeling Initiative (CLI) in 1996 (61 FR 12011, March 22, 1996) to explore ideas from consumers, industry, and health and safety professionals, on ways to improve the environmental, health and safe use information appearing on household product labels, specifically indoor insecticides, outdoor pesticides and household hard surface cleaners. The first stage of the CLI concluded with publication of the CLI Phase I Report (EPA-700-R-96-001) in September 1996. As part of Phase II of the CLI project, which began in 1997, the Agency's industry and trade association partners undertook a nationwide quantitative survey designed in cooperation with all of the CLI project participants. The survey, conducted from April-June 1998, tested the learnings from Phase I, explored alternatives to existing label language, and established a baseline of current consumer behavior with reactions to labels.

The survey questions and responses are now available for review in the CLI Administrative Record (AR-139). Detailed findings, conclusions, and recommendations developed from the survey information and other ongoing CLI activities will be available in the CLI Phase II Report, which is expected to be published in December 1998 or January 1999.
