[Docket No. 98-3 CARP]
Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panels; Rules and Regulations
AGENCY: Copyright Office, Library of Congress.
ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking.
SUMMARY: The Copyright Office of the Library of Congress is proposing amendments to the regulations governing the conduct of royalty distribution and rate adjustment proceedings prescribed by the Copyright Royalty Tribunal Reform Act of 1993. These changes are designed to fill gaps in the rules that have been the subject of inquiries and to promote the efficient resolution of issues and claims.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Copyright Royalty Tribunal Reform Act of 1993, Pub. L. 103-198, 17 Stat. 2304, eliminated the Copyright Royalty Tribunal (CRT) and replaced it with a system of ad hoc Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panels (CARPs) administered by the Librarian of Congress (Librarian) and the Copyright Office (Office). The CARPs adjust royalty rates and distribute royalties collected under the various compulsory licenses and statutory obligations of the Copyright Act. In 1994, the Office published final regulations for CARP proceedings. 59 FR 63025 (December 7, 1994). Eighteen months later, the Copyright Office issued a notice making non-substantive, technical changes to the rules. 61 FR 63715 (December 2, 1996). Based on the Office’s experience with the rules since they were first enacted, the Office is now proposing substantive changes to these regulations. These changes are designed to fill gaps in the rules that have been the source of inquiry or contention, to promote the early and efficient resolution of issues and claims, and to resolve ambiguities that have fostered misunderstandings. Many of the changes are codifications of rulings the Office has made by order in response to discovery motions. Now the substance of these orders will become part of the rules so that the Office’s policies are known in advance, and the motions upon which they were based become unnecessary.
