

NRC is developing inspection and enforcement guidance for certain medical use licensees (10 CFR 35.100, 200, 300). The guidance will focus attention on elements of the licensee's program performance having potential for significant health and safety outcomes. The central element of this new approach will be the use of performance indicators for program review. These indicators will consist of a limited number of key factors, each related to an important health and safety outcome. Collectively, they will be used to provide an overall assessment of the adequacy and acceptability of the licensee's radiation protection and materials control program performance. Lessons learned in this area will be applied to inspection and enforcement guidance for other areas.

This initiative is expected to improve the inspection and enforcement process for both the licensees and NRC, by reducing the impact of inspections and the regulatory burden on licensees, and more effectively using NRC resources. The objective of this meeting is to make the public aware of these initiatives and to provide it with an opportunity for public input and comment.

Copies of the inspection guidance that is proposed for the pilot program can be obtained from Ronald Zelac at the above address after December 23, 1998. An electronic copy of the document will be posted to NRC's Homepage (<http://www.nrc.gov>).

The meeting will be open to the public, on a space available basis. Members of the public who are unable to attend the meeting can send comments to Ronald E. Zelac, Rulemaking and Guidance Branch, Division of Industrial and Medical Nuclear Safety, Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards, by January 15, 1999. Comments received after this date will be considered if it is practical to do so.

Dated at Rockville, Maryland, this 21st day of December 1998.

For the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Frederick C. Combs,

Acting Director, Division of Industrial and Medical Nuclear Safety, Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards.
