

field and facility sanitation, and transportation.

On February 24, 1998, USDA and FDA issued a progress report to the President on the Initiative to Ensure the Safety of Imported and Domestic Fruits and Vegetables. The report summarized the progress USDA and FDA have made in providing good agricultural practices and good manufacturing practices guidance to domestic and international growers, harvesters, handlers, and transporters of fresh fruits and vegetables. The report discussed, among other things, the agencies' plans for assisting domestic and foreign producers to improve those practices.

The report stated that education and outreach programs are essential to foster appropriate application of the guidance by the domestic and international fresh fruit and vegetable industry, and that such programs are pivotal to industry's understanding of the essential principles of the guidance, as well as the scientific and practical reasons for application of the guidance as everyday production and processing practice.

The FDA workshop will begin the process for determining how to develop an education and outreach program for growers and producers of fresh fruit and vegetables imported into the United States. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss the most effective approaches for education and training and to identify any science-based needs that will further the implementation of the guide. At the meeting, foreign and domestic scientific experts, extension professionals, and industry representatives will make presentations on the applications of the guide. Representatives from donor organizations (e.g., the InterAmerican Development Bank) will also address infrastructure improvements needed to enhance food safety. Although the meeting will not offer training, per se, participants will have the opportunity to share current educational information and industry strategies that can further enhance the microbiological safety of fresh fruits and vegetables and contribute to the development of an educational framework for users of the guide.
