Beginning in 1997, NESAT collected detailed baseline information from both the participating SDUs and clients. It also collected information, primarily on service utilization, from the clients at 30 days following the initial data collection. A 12-month follow-up data collection from the participating SDUs and clients is currently underway. This data collection entails interviewing the clients, as well as gathering biological specimens (hair, urine, and breath) from the clients. The proposed project would extend data collection from clients (interviews and biological specimens) to 24 months and 36 months following the initial data collection.

The estimated response burden over the three-year period of approval is summarized below.

Data collection	Number of respondents	Number of responses per client	Hours per response	Total burden (hours)
24- and 36-month	1785	2	1.5	5,355
