GSA Bulletin FPMR H-76—Utilization and Disposal

To: Heads of Federal agencies

SUBJECT: Disposal of Year 2000 (Y2K) Noncompliant Biomedical Equipment and Information Technology (IT) Equipment

1. What is the purpose of this bulletin? Federal Property Management Regulations (FPMR) part 101-42 provides policy direction with respect to hazardous materials, which includes excess biomedical equipment. It also provides for the reporting of IT equipment as described in FPMR 101-43.304. The purpose of this bulletin is to provide further information for agencies on the disposal of excess biomedical and IT equipment with potential Y2K defects.

2. When does this bulletin expire? This bulletin contains information of a continuing nature and will remain in effect until canceled or revised.

3. What is the background? The Y2K technology problem relates to the inability of some automated equipment to correctly recognize dates after 1999. This inability may affect the normal operation of information technology equipment and biomedical equipment. In biomedical equipment, the Y2K problem may present a potential risk to public health and safety if not corrected. In response to this potential risk, GSA is providing guidance to executive agencies on the disposal of such equipment when it becomes excess.

4. What does this bulletin cover? This bulletin applies to (1) biomedical equipment listed on the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) critical list, and (2) IT equipment. The FDA critical list includes biomedical equipment identified by the FDA as having the greatest potential for presenting a risk to patients if a date problem is not corrected. Federal agencies should consult the FDA's Federal Y2K Biomedical Clearinghouse (Y2K Clearinghouse) located at <http://www.fda.gov/cdrh/yr2000/year2000.html> for information on equipment on the FDA list.

5. Disposal of biomedical equipment.

a. What is extremely hazardous biomedical equipment? For disposal purposes, Y2K noncompliant biomedical equipment may be identified as "extremely hazardous" in accordance FPMR 101-42.001. Extremely hazardous in this instance is Y2K noncompliant biomedical equipment that has been determined by the holding agency to endanger public health or safety, or the environment, if it is not rendered harmless before being used by other agencies or released outside the government.

b. Who determines the status of biomedical equipment? Biomedical
