Proposed Project: Vibrio Illness Investigation Report Form—(0920-0322)—Reinstatement—The National Center for Infectious Disease (NCID)—The purpose of the Cholera and other Vibrio Illness Investigation Report Form is to collect information on illnesses occurring as a result of infection with Vibrio species. Vibrios are important pathogens in the United States, primary septicemia, gastroenteritis, and wound infections have been associated with various species. Gastroenteritis and primary septicemia have been associated with the consumption of undercooked shellfish, particularly with raw, Gulf Coast oysters. Associations have also been linked to wound infections with exposure of broken skin to seawater. Most importantly, Vibrio cholerae 01 is the organism responsible for cholera, a severe, dehydrating diarrheal illness. Although infections with Vibrio cholerae 01 are notifiable in all states, an official report form for this illness did not previously exist. The Vibrio Illness Investigation Report Form is used to record information on all Vibrio-related illnesses, as well as more detailed information on cholera illness, which is currently a reportable disease in all states. The form has a separate, optional Seafood Investigation section to be completed when applicable. The form provides a consolidated, systematic method by which health departments can report such information, and is then used to gain a better understanding of the incidence, etiology, and epidemiology of all Vibrio-
