

1, 2000, all wireless carriers subject to the E911 rules report to the Commission their plans for implementing Phase II E911 features. This means the report should be filed one year in advance of the deadline for implementation (i.e., October 1, 2001). This report must include the technology they plan to use to provide caller location and whether this technology requires replacement or upgrades of any wireless handsets. If the carrier employs a handset-based approach, the carrier should also report its plans to provide location information to roamers under the "best practice" obligations imposed by the R&O. Carriers may revise their plans after the report is filed, however, carriers must file updates notifying the Commission of any changes to their files plans within 30 days of the adoption date of any such change. This paperwork burden is scheduled to go into effect on March 3, 2000.

This is a new collection imposed on carriers. The information submitted to the Commission will provide public service answering points (PSAPs), providers of location technology, investors, manufacturers, local exchange carriers, and the Commission with valuable information necessary for preparing for full Phase II E911 implementation. These advance reports will provide helpful, if not essential, information for coordinating carrier plans with those of manufacturers and PSAPs. Also, they will assist the Commission's efforts to monitor Phase II developments and to take necessary actions to maintain the Phase II implementation schedule.
