SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Abstract

Generic Survey Clearance of the Science Resources Studies Survey Improvement Projects and Quick Response Studies. The National Science Foundation’s (NSF) Division of Science Resources Studies (SRS) needs to collect timely data on constant changes in the science and technology sector and to provide the information to policy makers in Congress and throughout the Government. SRS will sponsor quick response surveys and workshops on science and technology subjects, perform cognitive testing to improve survey methodology and questionnaires, and pretest questions for future large-scale surveys.

Expected Respondents

The respondents will be from industry, academia, nonprofit organizations, members of the public, and Federal agencies. Data and information collection will be by mail, Internet, World Wide Web, telephone, visits, and/or workshops. As the table below shows, as many as 355 institutions will be contacted. No institution will be contacted more than twice in one year. Members of the public may be contacted for a survey of public attitudes toward science.

The information from the respondents is needed to provide policy makers with updates of the economic, financial, employment, and education situation in the science and technology sector of industry, academia, and nonprofit organizations. The information will also help NSF improve its current data collection instruments and processes. To minimize burden on small entities and to make sure that a high proportion of the science and technology universe is captured, most respondent selection will be designed with probability proportional to size. It is possible that during the 3 years of the survey clearance, NSF will study an issue that focuses on small entities, such as start-up high-technology companies. In this case, every effort will be made to use technology to limit the burden on respondents from small entities.

Information being collected is not considered to be sensitive. In general, assurance of data confidentiality will not be provided to respondents to the Generic Survey Clearance of the Science Resources Studies Survey Improvement Projects and Quick Response Studies. Instead, respondents have the option of requesting that any and all data they submit be kept confidential.

Use of the Information

The purpose of these studies is to collect information on the science and technology sector to respond to questions from policy makers and to improve the current NSF science and technology surveys. NSF will publish a separate report on the findings and also
