National Institute of Corrections

Solicitation for a Cooperative Agreement—Executive Leadership Training for Women

AGENCY: National Institute of Corrections, Department of Justice.

ACTION: Solicitation for a cooperative agreement.

SUMMARY: The National Institute of Corrections (NIC) invites applications for a cooperative agreement to provide for the revision of the current curriculum for the program, Executive Leadership Training for Women, and to plan all aspects of program delivery for the leadership series. The cooperative agreement includes the delivery of Phase I of the program in fiscal year 2002.

The award recipient will become familiar with the work currently being done at NIC that provides for an understanding of the history and future development goals of the NIC Executive Leadership Training Program for Women. Through an NIC briefing and review of written materials the recipient will have access to the original design methodology and all aspects of curriculum development and delivery. The recipient will have the full benefit of the work in progress under the cooperative agreement, "Documentation of the Impact of NIC Executive Leadership Training for Women" that will provide for an assessment of the impact of the current program on graduates.

This project will be a collaborative venture with the NIC Prisons Division. NIC seeks to continue to offer the most current and effective leadership development for women in senior positions in corrections. A total of $120,000 is reserved for the project during fiscal years 2001 and 2002. The 2001 allocation is $40,000 and the 2002 allocation is $80,000. Funds are subject to congressional approval at the beginning of each fiscal year. The cooperative agreement funds are intended to support one cooperative agreement over an 18 month period. The recipient of the award will be selected through the competitive solicitation process.

Background

History

In the early 1990's the Prisons Division of the National Institute of Corrections made a commitment to a leadership development curriculum that would enhance the ability of women for executive level positions in corrections. Although some women were in mid-level management and executive positions, the gains realized during the previous 20 years seemed to be slowing. Noting the under-representation of women in executive positions NIC awarded a Cooperative Agreement to develop a competency-based executive leadership training program for women. The development of the program was divided into two phases: Needs assessment and curriculum design; and a pilot presentation. The program was originally designed for senior level women working in state departments of corrections. It quickly expanded to include professional women from jails and community corrections. Since the development of the core program, additional "phases" or training events have been added to further enhance the long-term development of the graduate and her contribution to her agency.

Curriculum Design

The curriculum design for Executive Leadership for Women was developed as a competency model based on research done with correctional visionaries and women in senior positions in correctional leadership. The administration of several assessment instruments created findings that formed the development of the competencies. Through one such instrument, Strategic Directions Questionnaire, correctional leaders identified 10 competencies as essential to a commissioner's future leadership
