

The proposed performance standards also do not cover election administration databases and information technology that are not involved in ballot preparation, election coding of software, vote recording and tabulation, or vote consolidation and reporting (e.g.; databases used to manage voter registration, absentee balloting requests, precinct boundaries, poll worker remuneration, etc.). Further discussion of the reasons for these exclusions is contained in the Overview document that accompanies the proposed Standards.

The FEC is now making the draft "Volume I: Voting System Performance Standards" available for comment. This fall, the Commission plans to publish a notice in the Federal Register to announce when the draft "Volume II: Voting System Test Standards" is available for comment. The Commission will evaluate comments received on both volumes to determine what additional refinements are warranted. Following this process, a notice will be published in the Federal Register announcing the availability of the final documents. Assuming a continuous funding stream, the Commission anticipates a final issuance date no later than April 2002 and will recommend to the States, voting system vendors, and independent test authorities an effective date of July 1, 2002.

Electronic Access and Filing Addresses

Comments may be submitted by sending electronic messages to VSS@fec.gov. The FEC also accepts comments in electronic mail attachments and on disk that are in Word 5.0, or earlier version, file format. Commenters should avoid the use of special characters or encryption. When possible, commenters should reference the section to which a particular comment relates. Comments on the need to address issues not covered by this draft should identify the scope of what needs to be addressed as specifically as possible.

Persons sending comments by electronic mail must include their full name, electronic mail address and postal service address within the text of their comments. Comments that do not contain the full name, electronic mail address and postal service address of the commenter will not be considered.

Dated: July 3, 2001.

Danny L. McDonald,

Chairman, Federal Election Commission.
