SUMMARY: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has determined the regulatory review period for T-Scan 2000 and is publishing this notice of that determination as required by law. FDA has made the determination because of the submission of an application to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Department of Commerce, for the extension of a patent which claims that medical device.

ADDRESSES: Submit written comments and petitions to the Dockets Management Branch (HFA-305), Food and Drug Administration, 5630 Fishers Lane, rm. 1061, Rockville, MD 20852.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984 (Public Law 98-417) and the Generic Animal Drug and Patent Term Restoration Act (Public Law 100-670) generally provide that a patent may be extended for a period of up to 5 years so long as the patented item (human drug product, animal drug product, medical device, food additive, or color additive) was subject to regulatory review by FDA before the item was marketed. Under these acts, a product's regulatory review period forms the basis for determining the amount of extension an applicant may receive.

A regulatory review period consists of two periods of time: A testing phase and an approval phase. For medical devices, the testing phase begins with a clinical investigation of the device and runs until the approval phase begins. The approval phase starts with the initial submission of an application to market the device and continues until permission to market the device is granted. Although only a portion of a regulatory review period may count toward the actual amount of extension that the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks may award (half the testing phase must be subtracted as well as any time that may have occurred before the patent was issued), FDA's determination of the length of a regulatory review period for a medical device will include all of the testing phase and approval phase as specified in 35 U.S.C. 156(g)(3)(B).

FDA recently approved for marketing the medical device T-Scan 2000. T-Scan 2000 is intended for use as an adjunct to mammography in patients who have equivocal mammographic findings within ACR-BI-RADS categories 3 and 4. In particular, it is not intended for use in cases with clear mammographic or non-mammographic indications for biopsy. This device provides the radiologist with additional information to guide a biopsy recommendation. Subsequent to this approval, the Patent and Trademark Office received a patent term restoration application for T-Scan 2000 (U.S. Patent No. 4,291,708) from Transcan Research and Development Co., Ltd., and the Patent and Trademark Office requested FDA's assistance in determining this patent's eligibility for patent term restoration. In a letter dated September 13, 2000, FDA advised the Patent and Trademark Office that this medical device had undergone a regulatory review period and that the approval of T-Scan 2000 represented the first permitted commercial marketing or use of the product. Shortly thereafter, the Patent and Trademark Office requested that FDA determine the product's regulatory review period.

FDA has determined that the applicable regulatory review period for T-Scan 2000 is 1,595 days. Of this time, 964 days occurred during the testing phase of the regulatory review period, while 631 days occurred during the approval phase. These periods of time were derived from the following dates:

1. The date a clinical investigation involving this device was begun: December 5, 1994. FDA has verified the applicant's claim that the date the investigational device exemption (IDE) required under section 520(g) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the act) (21 U.S.C. 360j(g)) for human tests to begin became effective December 5, 1994.

2. The date the application was initially submitted with respect to the device under section 515 of the act (21 U.S.C. 360e): July 25, 1997. FDA has verified the applicant's claim that the premarket approval application (PMA) for T-Scan 2000 (PMA P970033) was initially submitted July 25, 1997.

3. The date the application was approved: April 16, 1999. FDA has
