Description: The Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA), Public Law 103-3, 107 Stat. 6, 29 U.S.C. 2601, which became effective on August 5, 1993, requires private sector employers of 50 or more employees, and public agencies to provide up to 12 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave during any 12-month period to “eligible” employees for certain family and medical reasons. The information collections involve third-party notifications between the employer and the employees. These requirements are necessary to ensure that both employers and employees are aware of and can exercise their rights and meet their respective obligations under FMLA. The record-keeping requirement are necessary in order for the Department of Labor to carry out its statutory obligation under section 106 of FMLA to investigate and ensure employer compliance. Without requiring employers to maintain these records, it would not be possible for the Department of Labor to determine compliance.
