

intends to scan and create an electronic copy of that document so that it can also be accessed in EPA Dockets. At times, however, the Agency may not be able to complete this conversion for all of the materials in the paper public docket. Eventually, however, EPA intends to provide electronic access to all of the publicly available docket materials through EPA Dockets, and will be working to designate EPA Dockets as the official public docket.

With regard to public comments, EPA will continue to place all public comments in the public docket as EPA receives them and without change. For those comments that contain CBI, or other information whose disclosure is restricted by statute, EPA will continue to ask the commenter to provide a non-CBI version of the comment for inclusion in the public docket.

For EPA Dockets, EPA's policy is that public comments will be made available for public viewing in EPA Dockets, as EPA receives them and without change, unless the comment contains copyrighted material, CBI, or other information whose disclosure is restricted by statute. When EPA identifies a comment containing copyrighted material, EPA will provide a reference to that material in the version of the comment that is placed in EPA Dockets. The entire printed comment, including the copyrighted material, will be available in the paper public docket.

Public comments submitted on computer disks that are mailed or delivered to the docket will be transferred to EPA Dockets. Public comments that are mailed or delivered in paper form to the docket facility will be scanned and placed in EPA Dockets. Where practical, physical objects will be photographed, and the photograph will be placed in EPA's electronic public docket along with a brief description written by the docket staff.

When a document is selected from the index list in EPA Dockets, the system will identify whether the document is available for viewing in EPA Dockets. Although not all docket materials may be available electronically, you may still access paper copies of any of the publicly available docket materials through the docket facility identified in the Federal Register document.

3. How Can I Access and Use EPA Dockets? You may access EPA Dockets on the Internet at <http://www.epa.gov/edocket>. You may use EPA Dockets to access available public docket materials online, as well as submit electronic comments to EPA during the open comment period for a particular docket available in EPA Dockets. To search for an available public docket or to search for a particular docket material, the system provides two basic methods of searching to retrieve dockets and docket materials that are available in the system: "Quick Search" to search using a full-text search engine, or through an "Advanced Search," which displays various indexed fields such as the docket name, docket identification number, phase of the action, initiating office, date of issuance, document title, document identification number, type of document, Federal Register reference, CFR citation, etc. Each data field in the advanced search may be searched independently or in combination with other fields, as desired. Each search yields a simultaneous display of all available information found in EPA Dockets that is relevant to the requested subject or topic.

You may also use EPA Dockets to submit your comments online when a particular docket available in EPA Dockets is open for public comments. The Federal Register document will identify whether a docket has been established in EPA Dockets, and will provide detailed instructions identifying the various methods that can be used to submit public comments to EPA.

If the docket for the Federal Register document was established prior to May 31, 2002, it may not identify EPA Dockets as an available method for submitting electronic comments on that Federal Register document. In such cases, if you do not find that public docket in EPA Dockets, you will not be able to use EPA Dockets to submit electronic comments to that particular docket, and you will need to follow the instructions in that Federal Register document for submitting your comments to EPA. If that public docket is nonetheless available in the system, EPA encourages you to use the system to submit your electronic comments. If the Federal Register document does not discuss EPA Dockets, only those comments submitted through EPA Dockets will be available in their entirety for online viewing in EPA Dockets.

Your use of EPA Dockets to submit comments to EPA electronically is EPA's preferred method for receiving comments. The system is an "anonymous access" system, which means EPA will not know your identity, e-mail address, or other contact information unless you provide it in the body of your comment. EPA recommends that you include your name, mailing address, and an e-mail address or other contact information in the body of your comment to ensure that you can be identified as the submitter of the comment, and it allows EPA to contact you in case EPA cannot read your comment due to technical difficulties or needs further information on the substance of your comment. EPA's policy is that EPA will not edit your comment, and any identifying or contact information provided in the body of a comment will be included as part of the comment that is placed in the official public docket, and made available in EPA's electronic public docket. If EPA cannot read your comment due to technical difficulties and cannot contact you for clarification, EPA may not be able to consider your comment.

You should continue to ensure that your comments are submitted within the specified open comment period. Comments received after the close of the comment period will be marked "late." EPA is not required to consider these late comments in formulating a final decision.

II. Background

A. Purpose of the Meeting

The FIFRA SAP will meet to review two topics:

1. Update the FIFRA SAP on the status of preliminary results from cumulative risk estimates for organophosphate pesticides (OP) using alternative models (Calendex™, LifeLine™, and CAREST™) and similar input data and parameters.

Cumulative risk estimates for OPs derived by EPA using the Calendex™ model (Novigen Sciences, Inc.) will be compared to preliminary results derived by The LifeLine Group using the LifeLine™ model and the Sound Science Policy Alliance (SSPA) using the CAREST™ model. The LifeLine™ assessments were conducted under contract to EPA. CAREST™ assessments were conducted by a group of OP registrants and their consultants (SSPA). These preliminary results will be presented to the FIFRA SAP by EPA for informational purposes only. The FIFRA SAP will not be asked to formally review and comment on these preliminary results.

2. Cumulative risk assessments for organophosphate pesticides: Susceptibility and age dependent sensitivity. The FQPA instructs EPA, in making its “reasonable certainty of no harm” finding, that in “the case of threshold effects,...an additional tenfold margin of safety for the pesticide chemical residue and other sources of exposure shall be applied for infants and children to take into account potential prenatal and postnatal toxicity and completeness of data with respect to exposure and toxicity to infants and children.” In implementing the FQPA safety factor provision in the context of assessing cumulative risk, the Agency has evaluated pertinent data concerning the potential for prenatal and postnatal effects associated with the common mechanism of toxicity for OP pesticides (namely, inhibition of acetylcholinesterase), the completeness of the hazard data with respect to common mechanism of toxicity to infants and children, and the completeness of the exposure database. The Agency seeks the FIFRA SAP’s review on the interpretation of the available laboratory studies on cholinesterase activity in fetal, neonatal and juvenile rats. In addition, the FIFRA SAP is asked to consider the mechanistic basis underlying the age dependent sensitivity of young to cholinesterase inhibition caused by OP pesticides.

B. The FIFRA SAP Report

The FIFRA SAP will prepare a report of its recommendations to the Agency in approximately 60 days. The report will be posted on the FIFRA SAP web site or may be obtained by contacting the Public Information and Records Integrity Branch at the address or telephone number listed in Unit I. of the SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION.
