Abstract: EPA is initiating the Laboratory Quality Assurance Program for Cryptosporidium analysis to ensure an adequate capacity at approved laboratories to support Long Term 2 Enhanced Surface Water Treatment Rule (LT2ESWTR) monitoring. This is a voluntary program open to laboratories analyzing Cryptosporidium in water. EPA will be collecting data on laboratories, ability and capacity to measuring Cryptosporidium with Methods 1622/23.

soliciting comments on this collection of information was published on March 4, 2002. Three comments were received.

Comments requested further information on the details of the Laboratory Quality Assurance Program. In response, EPA has added supplementary information to the ICR and also developed a webpage to provide further information on the program; the website can be accessed at http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lt2/cia_final.html.

Commentors expressed concern about identifying adequate laboratory capacity to implement LT2ESWTR, the burden costs, training opportunities, and grandfathered data, EPA has addressed all of these comments in the ICR supporting statement.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Title: Health Effects of Microbial Pathogens in Recreational Waters, EPA ICR Number 2081.01. This is a new collection.

Abstract: This study will be conducted, and the information collected, by the Epidemiology and Biomarkers Branch, Human Studies Division, National Health and Environmental Effects Research Laboratory, Office of Research and Development, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Participation of adults and children in this collection of information is strictly voluntary.

This information is being collected as part of a research program consistent with the section 3(a) (v) (1) of the Beaches Environmental Assessment and Coastal Health Act of 2000 and the strategic plan for EPA's Office of Research and Development (ORD) and the Office of Water entitled "Action Plan for Beaches and Recreational Water." The Beaches Act and ORD's strategic plan have identified research on effects of microbial pathogens in recreational waters as a high-priority research area with particular emphasis on developing new water quality indicator guidelines for recreational waters. EPA has broad legislative authority to establish water quality criteria and to conduct research to support these criteria. This data collection is for a series of epidemiological studies to evaluate exposure to and effects of microbial pathogens in marine and fresh (Great Lakes) recreational waters as part of EPA's research program on exposure and health effects of microbial pathogens in recreational waters. The results of these health effects studies will be used to document human health effects associated with recreational water use and correlate these health effects with ongoing EPA studies to identify a new generation of indicators for detection of human pathogens in recreational water and appropriate, effective, and expeditious testing methods for these indicators (addressed separately under section 3(a) (v) (2 & 3) of the Beaches Environmental Assessment and Coastal Health Act of 2000). The results will be used to develop mathematical relationships that will be used for the generation of new national water quality guidelines and appropriate monitoring guidelines.

An agency may not conduct or sponsor, and a person is not required to respond to, a collection of information unless it displays a currently valid OMB control number. The OMB control numbers for EPA's regulations are listed in 40 CFR part 9 and 48 CFR Chapter 15.
