In this action the United States asserted a claim under section 107(a) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), 42 U.S.C. 9607(a), for recovery of response costs incurred by the United States at the Newton County Superfund Site in Missouri. The State of Missouri also asserted a claim for recovery of response costs under section 107(a) of CERCLA. Defendant Newton County is a current owner of an approximately 30 acre parcel of property contaminated with mine waste near Granby, Missouri within the Site.

Under the terms of the proposed Consent Decree settling the claims asserted in the Complaint, Newton County will allow its parcel of property near Granby to be used for disposal of contaminated materials removed from other portions of the Site. The contaminated materials will be disposed of in a Repository approximately 10 acres in size. The County agrees to finance and perform all Operation and Maintenance activities for the Repository as specified in an appendix to the Decree. The Decree also requires the County to execute and record a restrictive covenant, running with the land, that will prohibit activities that might disturb the cap as well as construction of facilities for which the remedy would be insufficiently protective. In return for the commitments by Newton County, the United States and the State grant Newton County a covenant not to sue under sections 106 and 107(a) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. 9606 and 9607(a), and State law for response costs relating to the Newton County Mine Tailings Superfund Site.

Notice is hereby given that on April 9, 2003, a proposed Consent Decree in United States v. CF&I Steel, L.P., d/b/a Rocky Mountain Steel Mills, an action for injunctive relief and civil penalties pursuant to the Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq., was lodged with the United States District Court for the District of Colorado, Case No. 03-M-0608.

In this action, the United States sought injunctive relief and civil penalties against Rocky Mountain Steel Mills for alleged violations of the Prevention of Significant Deterioration ("PSD") requirements and New Source Performance Standards set forth in the Clean Air Act. The alleged violations occurred when Rocky Mountain Steel Mills undertook a series of modifications at its steelmaking facility located in Pueblo, Colorado. In the proposed Consent Decree, Rocky Mountain Steel Mills agrees to conduct a modernization project at its facility, which will involve the shutdown of its two existing electric arc furnaces and replacement with a new, modernized furnace. The Consent Decree requires that Rocky Mountain Steel Mills meet the New Source Performance Standards set forth at 40 CFR part 60, subpart Aaa, and install the Best Available Control Technologies to minimize emissions from the new furnace. The precise emissions limitations that Rocky Mountain Steel Mills will have to meet will be set forth in a PSD permit to be issued by the State of Colorado and approved by EPA. The estimated costs of these renovations is $25 million. The proposed consent Decree also requires that Rocky Mountain Steel Mills pay a civil penalty of $450,000 and perform several Supplemental Environmental Projects ("SEPs") and undertake additional relief valued at over $750,000. The SEPs and additional relief will result in reductions of emissions from the facility beyond those required by law and address some of the impacts on the surrounding community that resulted from Rocky Mountain Steel Mills' violations of the Act.
