SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Among the mines within a 500 mi² region of Southwestern New Mexico and Southeastern Arizona (Gila Region), the Phelps Dodge Corporation Chino, Tyrone, and Morenci open-pit copper mines are among the largest. Several ephemeral streams have been impacted by downstream releases, and portions of the Gila and San Francisco Rivers and their tributaries (bordered by the Gila and Apache National Forests) have been affected by high concentration metal pulses. Four species listed under the Endangered Species Act (spikedace, loach minnow, southwestern willow flycatcher, and Chiricahua leopard frog) frequent the affected areas, and resources under the management of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Bureau of Land Management may have been impacted.

In September and October 2000, numerous dead birds were discovered at the Phelps Dodge Chino and Tyrone Mines in New Mexico, and the Morenci Mine in Arizona. The discovery of these dead birds (with a strong causal link to death by acid and metal poisoning), and the completion of an ecological risk assessment at an area impacted by historical copper smelter emissions (with direct evidence of injury to Department of the Interior trust resources), requires that the Department move forward with assessment of further injuries immediately. The Department has contacted the parties potentially responsible for releases of hazardous materials and invited them to participate in the assessment of injuries. Should evaluation of data indicate further extensive assessment studies are necessary, an assessment plan will be published and public comments solicited.

The preassessment screen indicates there are multiple methods that could be used in the of valuation of damages, including one method called "contingent valuation." While this method is evaluated in the document, it is not likely that the Department would use the contingent valuation method because it depends heavily on subjective opinions in its analysis. More likely, once extent of injuries are determined, the Department would use one of the other methods of damage determination: Examples of such restoration project(s) would be where the responsible party conducts the implementation of the restoration project with Trustee oversight and no determination of specific monetary damages are made, or where the Trustees perform restoration projects funded by responsible parties.

Acting Regional Director, Southwest Region, Albuquerque, New Mexico, Authorized Official, Department of the Interior.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE COMMISSION

[Investigation No. 731-TA-768 (Review)]

Fresh Atlantic Salmon From Chile

AGENCY: United States International Trade Commission.

ACTION: Termination of five-year review.

SUMMARY: The subject five-year review was initiated in June 2003 to determine whether revocation of the antidumping duty order on fresh Atlantic salmon from Chile would be likely to lead to continuation or recurrence of dumping and of material injury to a domestic industry. On July 25, 2003, Commerce published notice of its final results of a changed circumstances review, in which it decided to revoke the order on fresh Atlantic salmon from Chile, effective July 1, 2001, because "domestic interested parties expressed no interest in the continuation of this order" (68 FR 44043). In light of the revocation of the order, Commerce published notice that it was rescinding its five-year review on fresh Atlantic salmon from Chile on August 13, 2003 (68 FR 48339). Accordingly, pursuant to section 751(c) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1675(c)), the subject review is terminated.

EFFECTIVE DATE: August 13, 2003.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On

September 5, 2001, the Commission determined not to review a final initial determination finding that respondent Altima Communications, Inc. ("Altima") violated section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930 in the unlawful importation and sale of certain integrated repeaters covered by various claims of U.S. Patent No. 5,894,410 and U.S. Patent No. 5,742,603, owned by complainant Intel Corporation ("Intel"). On October 24, 2001, the Commission issued a limited exclusion order excluding from entry for consumption into the United States the infringing articles. The President did not disapprove the Commission's determination. See 19 U.S.C. 1337(j)(4).

On August 14, 2003, Intel filed with the Commission a Petition for Rescission of Exclusion Order based on a settlement agreement between Intel and Broadcom Corporation ("Broadcom"), Altima's parent. On August 19, 2003, Altima and Broadcom filed a response, stating that they join in the petition and request rescission. No party opposed the petition. The Commission found that the requirements of Commission rules 210.76(a)(1) and 210.76(a)(2), 19 CFR 210.76(a)(1) and (a)(2), were satisfied, and determined to grant the petition for rescission.

This action is taken under the authority of section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930, 19 U.S.C. 1337(k), and section 210.76(a) of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 19 CFR 210.76(a).

Issued: August 21, 2003.
