ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY

[FRL-7629-5; Docket ID No. RCRA-2004-0001]

Office of Solid Waste and Emergency Response; Announcement of Listening Sessions

AGENCY: Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: EPA will hold listening sessions on March 23, 2004, in State College, Pennsylvania; April 13, 2004, in Dallas, Texas; and April 22, 2004, in Vincennes, Indiana. These three listening sessions are opportunities for interested parties to provide EPA with information on the practices of placing coal combustion byproducts in coal mines and at surface impoundments and landfills, including non-coal mine sites. EPA is interested in obtaining information on benefits and problems associated with the practices. Placement of coal combustion byproducts at coal mines is currently regulated under any of three scenarios: (1) Regulated by federal or State agencies operating under authority of the federal Surface Mining Reclamation and Control Act (SMCRA) administered by the U.S. Department of the Interior; (2) regulated by State agencies operating under State mining or solid waste laws; or (3) a combination of these. EPA is in the process of considering whether Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) subtitle D or SMCRA authorities or some combination of both are most appropriate to regulate placement at coal mines. For placement of coal combustion byproducts at surface impoundments and landfills, including non-coal mine sites, EPA is in the process of developing regulations under subtitle D of RCRA. At these listening sessions, officials from the U.S. Department of the Interior and State mining and solid waste agencies will be present, along with EPA officials.

DATES: The listening session dates are:

1. March 23, 2004, in State College, Pennsylvania.
2. April 13, 2004, in Dallas, Texas.
3. April 22, 2004, in Vincennes, Indiana.
