

A response rate of 70 percent and 30 minutes to gather data will result in an overall response burden of 420 hours for completing the Data Collection Worksheet. The total annualized burden is estimated at 980 hours.

The hourly burden per respondent for the online business plan and reporting tool (START) is estimated at 3.5 hours. This includes time for reviewing and completing the workbook and users guide. Approximately 80 of the 1200 Neighborhood Networks centers currently in operation are using START—a participation rate of approximately 7 percent. It is anticipated that online business plan development and reporting will increase to roughly 10 percent over the next few months. A participation rate of 10 percent and an average of 3.5 hours to complete the tool will result in an overall annual response burden of 420 hours.

Approximately 800 (or 67 percent) of the 1,200 Neighborhood Networks centers currently have a formal paper business plan. Based on an average of 2 hours to complete/update a business plan, the estimated overall annual response burden is 1,600 hours.

Status of the proposed information collection: Revision of a currently approved collection.

Authority: The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, 44 U.S.C., Chapter 35, as amended.

Although owners are not required to notify HUD of elections under Title VI-D, HUD reserves the right at any time to verify the accuracy of an owner's preferences or restrictions.

The House Appropriations Committee in its Committee Report on Fiscal Year 2000 appropriations for HUD, directed HUD to "establish, maintain, and publish annually, an inventory of all housing that is designated in whole or in part for occupancy by elderly families, disabled families, or both. The inventory shall include, but not be limited to, the number of apartments in buildings designated for occupancy only by disabled families, and the number of apartments in buildings with special features designed to accommodate disabled persons." The Committee also directed HUD to work with the Committee in developing this inventory.

Accordingly, today's notice announces HUD's Multifamily Inventory of Units for the Elderly and Persons with Disabilities (Inventory). As noted above, the Inventory is designed to assist prospective applicants with locating units in certain projects with FHA insured financing and HUD subsidized multifamily properties that serve the elderly or persons with disabilities.
