Economic Research Service

Title: Rapid Consumer Response Survey.

OMB Control Number: 0536-NEW.

Summary of Collection: The Economic Research Service (ERS), as the lead economic research arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has the responsibility to conduct economic research supporting the mission of the Department. This responsibility includes conducting research and providing information to Department officials on economic issues related to food safety, nutrition and health (including factors related to food choices), consumption patterns at and away from home, food prices, food assistance programs, nutrition education, and food industry structure. USDA faces many demands for information about consumer behavior. To better assess issues of importance to consumers and to agriculture, a pilot survey, entitled Rapid Consumer Response Module (RCRM), is being proposed that will address topical issues in consumer behavior. RCRM will enable the Department to assess consumer attitudes and reactions to market developments and such policy events as the new dietary guidelines, mercury standards for fish, country of origin labeling, price or supply shocks in the food distribution system, and food safety incidents.

Need and Use of the Information: The information collected in the RCRM survey will be on consumption, behavior, and consumer reaction to and opinions about food safety incidents and diet and health issues. The information gained from the RCRM will help researchers formulate their hypotheses and provide key indicators on consumers' attitude or perception on dietary and safety issues. Without the information ERS is not able to conduct the proposed surveys, the agency's ability to have access to timely information about consumer behavior and attitude on diet and health issues will be greatly hampered.

Description of Respondents: Individuals or households.

Number of Respondents: 6,600.

Frequency of Responses: Reporting: Quarterly.

Total Burden Hours: 3,080.
