7 CFR Part 2902

RIN 0503-AA29

Designation of Biobased Items for Federal Procurement

AGENCY: Office of Energy Policy and New Uses, USDA.

ACTION: Final rule; establishment of effective date.

SUMMARY: The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is amending 7 CFR part 2902, Guidelines for Designating Biobased Products for Federal Procurement, to establish the effective date by which procuring agencies must give a procurement preference for qualifying biobased water tank coatings and bedding, bed linens, and towels. These two items were designated for procurement preference in a final rule published by USDA on March 16, 2006 (71 FR 13686). At that time, however, the effective date by which procuring agencies were required to give these two designated items procurement preference was deferred until such time that additional manufacturers of products within these designated items were identified. This final rule announces that additional manufacturers have been identified for each item and establishes the effective date by which procuring agencies must give these two designated items procurement preference.

DATES: This rule is effective November 20, 2006.

I. Authority

The Guidelines for Designating Biobased Products for Federal Procurement (the Guidelines) were established under the authority of section 9002 of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (FSRIA), 7 U.S.C. 8102 (referred to in this document as "section 9002"), as amended by the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (Pub. L. 109-58).

II. Background

On March 16, 2006, USDA published in the Federal Register (71 FR 13686) a final rule designating six items within which biobased products will be afforded procurement preference, as required by section 9002 of FSRIA. In that final rule, USDA established an effective date of March 16, 2007, as the date by which procuring agencies must give procurement preference to four of the six items. However, as discussed in the preamble to the March 16, 2006, final rule, USDA deferred establishing an effective date for the other two items because only one manufacturer of a biobased product within each of these items had been identified. The two items for which an effective date was deferred were water tank coatings and bedding, bed linens, and towels.

In the March 16, 2006, Federal Register notice, USDA announced that a preferred procurement effective date would be established for water tank coatings and bedding, bed linens, and towels after two or more manufacturers of biobased products within these items were identified. With today's final rule, USDA is announcing that additional manufacturers of products within these two designated items have been identified. As it has done with all manufacturers of qualifying biobased products, USDA invites these manufacturers of qualifying products to post information on the product, contact information, and performance testing on its FB4P Web site, <http://www.biobased.oce.usda.gov>. Procuring agencies will be able to utilize this Web site as one tool to determine the availability of qualifying biobased products under a designated item.

III. Summary of Changes

This final rule amends subsections 2902.12(c) and 2902.15(c) to specify the dates by which procuring agencies must give procurement preference to biobased products within the water tank coatings and bedding, bed linens, and towels designated items, respectively. USDA is establishing a preference effective date of November 20, 2007 for these two designated items. This effective date allows procuring agencies a one-year period for the implementation of the procurement preference.
