

guidance document provides recommendations for the submission of a biologics license application for placental/umbilical cord blood products that are: (1) Manipulated minimally; (2) used for hematopoietic reconstitution in patients with hematological malignancies; and (3) used in recipients unrelated to the donor. The document also contains information about the manufacture of minimally manipulated, unrelated, allogeneic placental/umbilical cord blood and how to comply with applicable regulatory requirements. For the manufacture of peripheral blood or cord hematopoietic stem/progenitor cells other than those described, the manufacturer may need to submit an investigational new drug application or other premarketing application for that product.
