

In order to perform its homeland security and public safety functions, the Commission needs to revise this information collection to update the manner in which it collects emergency contact information, and in the event of an actual emergency to allow communications providers to input critical information about network status and resource requirements of communications providers. The FCC will revise this collection to provide an electronic database for communications providers to enter this information electronically, via the Internet. Communications providers are encouraged to volunteer this information. This database will be used initially for communications providers to enter basic contact information. In the event of a natural disaster or other emergency event, the database will be used to contact communications providers in affected areas and to determine the extent of any damage and to gauge the appropriate agency response.

On October 8, 2004, the Commission adopted an order granting in part and denying in part a petition for forbearance filed by Core Communications, Inc. (Core) regarding application of the Commission's ISP Remand Order (Core Forbearance Order). Two parties, SBC Communications Inc. (SBC) and Qwest Corporation (Qwest), filed petitions for reconsideration within the 30-day period established pursuant to § 1.429 of the Commission's rules. SBC filed its petition for reconsideration on November 17, 2004, and SBC's successor company, AT&T, withdrew that petition on July 18, 2006. Qwest filed a conditional petition for reconsideration on November 10, 2004 and withdrew its petition on January 23, 2007. There are no pending petitions for reconsideration of the Core Forbearance Order. Therefore, the proceeding will be terminated effective 30 days after publication of this Public Notice in the Federal Register, unless the Wireline Competition Bureau receives an opposition to the termination before that date.
