Background

The Corporation is a federal government agency that encourages Americans of all ages and backgrounds to engage in community-based service to meet the nation's educational, public safety, environmental, homeland security, and other human needs. Through its program, Learn and Serve America, the Corporation provides resources to K-12 schools, higher education institutions, and community-based organizations for the promotion and sustainability of service-learning activities. Since Learn and Serve America was established in 1990, it has been the catalyst for a wide expansion of community service and service-learning in America's schools, colleges and youth service organizations. In 1984, approximately nine percent of schools in the United States offered service-learning opportunities. By 1999, about one-third of all K-12 public schools in the United States offered service-learning for their students. A new study of the prevalence of service-learning in K-12 schools will allow Learn and Serve America to continue to assess the extent to which its efforts and those of other organizations that promote service-learning have led to the growth of service-learning. Information collected through this survey will be used by the Corporation to track progress on key Strategic Plan and Learn and Serve performance measures.
