SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. General Information

A. Does this Action Apply to Me?

This action is directed to the public in general, and may be of interest to a wide range of stakeholders including environmental, human health, and agricultural advocates; the chemical industry; pesticide users; and members of the public interested in the sale, distribution, or use of pesticides. Since others also may be interested, the Agency has not attempted to describe all the specific entities that may be affected by this action. If you have any questions regarding the applicability of this action to a particular entity, consult the person listed under FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT.

B. What Should I Consider as I Prepare My Comments for EPA?

1. Submitting CBI. Do not submit this information to EPA through regulations.gov or e-mail. Clearly mark the part or all of the information that you claim to be CBI. For CBI information in a disk or CD ROM that you mail to EPA, mark the outside of the disk or CD ROM as CBI and then identify electronically within the disk or CD ROM the specific information that is claimed as CBI. In addition to one complete version of the comment that includes information claimed as CBI, a copy of the comment that does not contain the information claimed as CBI must be submitted for inclusion in the public docket. Information so marked will not be disclosed except in accordance with procedures set forth in 40 CFR part 2.

2. Tips for preparing your comments. When submitting comments, remember to:

i. Identify the document by docket ID number and other identifying information (subject heading, Federal Register date and page number).

ii. Follow directions. The Agency may ask you to respond to specific questions or organize comments by referencing a Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) part or section number.

iii. Explain why you agree or disagree; suggest alternatives and substitute language for your requested changes.

iv. Describe any assumptions and provide any technical information and/or data that you used.

v. If you estimate potential costs or burdens, explain how you arrived at your estimate in sufficient detail to allow for it to be reproduced.

vi. Provide specific examples to illustrate your concerns and suggest alternatives.

vii. Explain your views as clearly as possible, avoiding the use of profanity or personal threats.

viii. Make sure to submit your comments by the comment period deadline identified.

II. Background

A. What Action is the Agency Taking?

EPA is releasing for public comment its human health and environmental fate and effects risk assessments and related documents for copper 8-quinolinolate, and soliciting public comment on risk management ideas or proposals. Copper 8-quinolinolate is currently registered as an active ingredient and is used as an algacide, bactericide and fungicide. EPA developed the risk assessment and risk characterization for copper 8-quinolinolate through a modified version of its public process for making pesticide reregistration eligibility and tolerance reassessment decisions. Through these programs, EPA is ensuring that pesticides meet current standards under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) and the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA), as amended by the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996 (FQPA).

Copper 8-quinolinolate is used as a materials preservative and as a wood preservative. The following materials contain copper 8-quinolinolate as a preservative: Industrial textiles intended for the treatment of webbing, tenting, rope, canvas, leather, industrial cotton, industrial fabrics and clothing worn by the military. These textile uses are intended for military use. Other material preservation uses include in-can paint preservation, pulp and paperboard, kraft paper, adhesives and glues. Copper 8-quinolinolate is used as an industrial wood preservative to control sapstain and to protect against mold and mildew in soft-wood or hard-wood lumber. It can also protect against insect damage for wood used mainly above ground. As a wood preservative copper 8-quinolinolate is used as a wood surface coating (e.g., water repellents applied via brush, roller or spray). Copper 8-quinolinolate is impregnated into wood via non-pressure (e.g., non-pressure dipping/immersion) and pressure techniques (vacuum/empty-cell). The products can be used on many different types of wood including green or fresh cut/debarked lumber, poles, posts, and timbers; manufactured wood products such as logs (e.g., log home construction), plywood and particle board (wood composites); dry lumber; and finished wood products such as millwork, shingles, siding, plywood and structural lumber. The majority of the products are intended for use at wood treatment facilities.

EPA is providing an opportunity, through this notice, for interested parties to provide comments and input on the Agency's risk assessment for copper 8-quinolinolate. Such comments and input could address, for example, the availability of additional data to further refine the risk assessments, such as wood leaching data; confirmatory data to support wood treatment use; confirmatory inhalation toxicity data; or could address the Agency's risk assessment methodologies and assumptions as applied to this specific pesticide.

Through this notice, EPA also is providing an opportunity for interested parties to provide risk management proposals or otherwise comment on risk management for copper 8-quinolinolate. Risks of concern associated with the use of copper 8-quinolinolate are: Occupational handler exposure and risks of concern resulting from wood preservation (via brush, low pressure sprayer and liquid pump), paper preservation (via liquid pump and liquid pour), textile preservation (via liquid pour) and application of treated paint (via airless sprayer); residential application of treated paint (via airless sprayer); residential post-application risks of concern resulting from treated tents; residential post-application aggregate exposure and risks of concern resulting from treated outdoor surfaces, treated textiles and treated wood products. In targeting these risks of concern, the Agency solicits information on effective and practical risk reduction measures.

EPA seeks to achieve environmental justice, the fair treatment and meaningful involvement of all people, regardless of race, color, national origin, or income, in the development, implementation, and enforcement of environmental laws, regulations, and policies. To help address potential environmental justice issues, the Agency seeks information on any groups or segments of the population who, as a result of their location, cultural practices, or other factors, may have atypical, unusually high exposure to copper 8-quinolinolate, compared to the general population.

EPA is applying the principles of public participation to all pesticides undergoing reregistration and tolerance reassessment. The Agency's Pesticide Tolerance Reassessment and Reregistration; Public Participation Process, published in the Federal Register on May 14, 2004 (69 FR 26819) (FRL-7357-9), explains that in conducting these programs, the Agency is tailoring its public participation process to be commensurate with the level of risk, extent of use, complexity of the issues, and degree of public concern associated with each pesticide. For copper 8-quinolinolate, a modified, 4-Phase process with 1 comment period and ample opportunity for public consultation seems appropriate in view of its refined risk assessment. However, if as a result of comments received during this comment period EPA finds that additional issues warranting further discussion are raised, the Agency may lengthen the process and include a second comment period, as needed.

All comments should be submitted using the methods in ADDRESSES, and must be received by EPA on or before the closing date. Comments will become part of the Agency Docket for copper 8-quinolinolate. Comments received after the close of the comment period will be marked "late." EPA is not required to consider these late comments.

B. What is the Agency's Authority for Taking this Action?

Section 4(g)(2) of FIFRA as amended directs that, after submission of all data concerning a pesticide active ingredient, "the Administrator shall determine whether pesticides containing such active ingredient are eligible for reregistration," before calling in product-specific data on individual end-use products and either reregistering products or taking other "appropriate regulatory action."

Section 408(q) of the FFDCFA, 21 U.S.C. 346a(q), requires EPA to review tolerances and exemptions for pesticide residues in effect as of August 2, 1996, to determine whether the tolerance or exemption meets the requirements of section 408(b)(2) or (c)(2) of FFDCFA. This review was completed by August 3, 2006.
