For CBI information in a disk or CD ROM that you mail to EPA, mark the outside of the disk or CD ROM as CBI and then identify electronically within the disk or CD ROM the specific information that is claimed as CBI. In addition to one complete version of the comment that includes information claimed as CBI, a copy of the comment that does not contain the information claimed as CBI must be submitted for inclusion in the public docket. Information so marked will not be disclosed except in accordance with procedures set forth in 40 CFR part 2.

viii. Make sure to submit your comments by the comment period deadline identified.

II. Background

A. What Action is the Agency Taking?

EPA is releasing for public comment its human health and environmental fate and effects risk assessments and related documents for the naphthenate salts, and soliciting public comment on risk management ideas or proposals. The naphthenate salts are microbiocide/microbiostat, miticide, fungicides, insecticides, algacide and herbicide/terrestrial chemicals. EPA developed the risk assessments and risk characterization for the naphthenate salts through a modified version of its public process for making pesticide reregistration eligibility and tolerance reassessment decisions. Through these programs, EPA is ensuring that pesticides meet current standards under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) and the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA), as amended by the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996 (FQPA).

The naphthenate salts are used predominantly in industrial and commercial wood preservation for non-pressure (dip/brush/spray) and pressure treatments (vacuum/full-cell) to protect against fungal rot, decay, termites and wood-boring insects in unfinished wood and various fabricated wood products. These preservatives are also used for remedial treatments to in-service poles (internal/external surfaces at ground or below-ground level via brush/trowel, mechanical injection, or bandage wrap). Treated wood is specified for exterior above-ground, ground-contact, below-ground and fresh or salt water contact use applications. The naphthenate salts are also used as protective wood preservative surface treatments when applied to bare seasoned wood. Copper/zinc naphthenates are also used for mainly commercial/industrial materials preservation of cellulose-based cordage/textiles. Products are used as fungistats to control rot and mildew and are registered for impregnation by dip (primarily), or by spray and brush surface treatment. It is additionally used for incorporation into industrial textiles meeting military or government-specified needs. Examples of the materials/wood preserved using naphthenate salts include cellulose-based fibers in cordage (ropes, twine, nets) and non-apparel and industrial textiles (tents, awnings, tarpaulins, canvas products, burlap, truck and boat covers, and non-rubber fabrics); outdoor wood building materials, such as particle board; lumber, patio decking, fence posts, and other wood products; and in-service wood utility poles and similar members.

EPA is providing an opportunity, through this notice, for interested parties to provide comments and input on the Agency's risk assessments for the naphthenate salts. Such comments and input could address, for example, the availability of additional data to further refine the risk assessments, such as dermal toxicity data to support the wood preservation use; inhalation toxicity data, or could address the Agency's risk assessment methodologies and assumptions as applied to this specific pesticide.

Through this notice, EPA also is providing an opportunity for interested parties to provide risk management proposals or otherwise comment on risk management for the naphthenate salts. Risks of concern associated with the use of the naphthenate salts are: Occupational handler exposure and risks of concern resulting from preservation of textiles and wood preservation; Residential handler exposure and risks of concern resulting from application of preservative coatings/water repellents for protection of outdoor-use wood/textiles (via brush/roller and low pressure sprayer). In targeting these risks of concern, the Agency solicits information on effective and practical risk reduction measures.

EPA seeks to achieve environmental justice, the fair treatment and meaningful involvement of all people, regardless of race, color, national origin, or income, in the development, implementation, and enforcement of environmental laws, regulations, and policies. To help address potential environmental justice issues, the Agency seeks information on any groups or segments of the population who, as a result of their location, cultural practices, or other factors, may have atypical, unusually high exposure to the naphthenate salts, compared to the general population.

EPA is applying the principles of public participation to all pesticides undergoing reregistration and tolerance reassessment. The Agency's Pesticide Tolerance Reassessment and Reregistration; Public Participation Process, published in the Federal Register on May 14, 2004 (69 FR 26819) (FRL-7357-9), explains that in conducting these programs, the Agency is tailoring its public participation process to be commensurate with the level of risk, extent of use, complexity of the issues, and degree of public concern associated with each pesticide. For the naphthenate salts, a modified, 4-Phase process with one comment period and ample opportunity for public consultation seems appropriate in view of its refined risk assessment. However, if as a result of comments received during this comment period EPA finds that additional issues warranting further discussion are raised, the Agency may lengthen the process and include a second comment period, as needed.

All comments should be submitted using the methods in ADDRESSES, and must be received by EPA on or before the closing date. Comments will become part of the Agency Docket for the naphthenate salts. Comments received after the close of the comment period will be marked "late." EPA is not required to consider these late comments.

B. What is the Agency's Authority for Taking this Action?

Section 4(g)(2) of FIFRA as amended directs that, after submission of all data concerning a pesticide active ingredient, "the Administrator shall determine whether pesticides containing such active ingredient are eligible for reregistration," before calling in product-specific data on individual end-use products and either reregistering products or taking other "appropriate regulatory action."

Section 408(q) of the FFDCA, 21 U.S.C. 346a(q), requires EPA to review tolerances and exemptions for pesticide residues in effect as of August 2, 1996, to determine whether the tolerance or exemption meets the requirements of section 408(b)(2) or (c)(2) of FFDCA. This review was completed by August 3, 2006.
