Child and Adult Care Food Program: At-Risk Afterschool Meals in Eligible States

AGENCY: Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), USDA.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: This rule proposes to amend the Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) regulations to implement provisions from the Agriculture Risk Protection Act of 2000, the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2002, and the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2008, that authorize reimbursement to eligible States for a meal (normally a supper) served by at-risk afterschool care programs. The eligible States are Delaware, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The intent of this proposed rule is to conform CACFP regulations to statutory amendments that provide an additional meal for at-risk children through age 18 who are participating in afterschool programs in the eligible States. The Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) implemented the statutory mandates through written policy guidance upon enactment of the statutory provisions.

DATES: To be assured of consideration, written comments must be received or postmarked on or before May 27, 2008.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

1. What are at-risk afterschool meals?

Afterschool meals in the CACFP are served to at-risk children participating in eligible afterschool care programs in selected States as authorized by law. At-risk afterschool meals were authorized by section 243(i) of the Agriculture Risk Protection Act of 2000 (Pub. L. 106–224), which amended section 17(r) of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1766(r)) (NSLA).

This provision followed an earlier authorization for afterschool snack reimbursements through the CACFP by the William F. Goodling Child Nutrition Reauthorization Act of 1998 (Pub. L. 105–336). Public Law 105–336 expanded the availability of snacks to children ages 13 through 18 in the CACFP through at-risk afterschool care centers that are located in the attendance area of a school where 50 percent or more of the enrolled children are certified as eligible to receive free or reduced price school meals. Public Law 105–336 also provided for the nationwide availability of snacks in the National School Lunch Program (NSLP). A proposed rule to implement the statutory provisions for afterschool snacks in the NSLP and CACFP was published on October 11, 2000 (65 FR 60502). The proposal had a 90-day comment period; 33 comment letters were received. A final rule, Afterschool Snacks in the Child and Adult Care Food Program, was published on July 31, 2007 (72 FR 41591). A final rule on serving afterschool snacks in the NSLP is expected to be published in 2008.

As stipulated by law, at-risk meals and snacks are available to children through age 18 (or any age if disabled) who are participating in an afterschool care program under the CACFP. The afterschool care program must be located in the geographical area of a school in which at least 50 percent of the children who are enrolled are certified eligible for free or reduced price meals. Although at-risk afterschool snacks are available in all States, at-risk afterschool meals are only available in States authorized by section 17(r)(5) of the NSLA—currently, Delaware, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. To be eligible, afterschool care programs must be organized primarily to provide care to at-risk school children after school, or on weekends, holidays, or school vacations and must provide educational or enrichment activities. At-risk meals and snacks must be served free of charge to the participants and are reimbursed at the applicable free rates for meals and snacks.

2. How were the States selected for at-risk afterschool meals?

Initially, only six States were authorized to be reimbursed for meals served in at-risk afterschool programs. Four of the six States were named in the law (Delaware, Michigan, Missouri, and Pennsylvania); two remaining States were to be selected by the Secretary based upon competitive applications. As described in the following paragraph, the Department selected New York and Oregon through the competitive application process. The seventh State, Illinois, was added by section 771(3) of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002 (Pub. L. 107–76, 115 Stat. 745, November 28, 2001), and the eighth State, West Virginia was added by section 744, division A of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 (Pub. L. 110–161, December 26, 2007). Both laws amended section 17(r)(5) of the NSLA (42 U.S.C.1766(r)).

3. How did USDA select the other two States?

Acting on the statutory requirement to select two States competitively, FNS distributed applications to all CACFP State agencies in August 2000. Eleven State agencies submitted applications by the October 2000 deadline. FNS rated the submissions using the following criteria: demonstration of need; State support of afterschool care programs; and status of at-risk afterschool care programs in CACFP.

The applicants were notified in December 2000 of the Department’s selections.

4. When were these States authorized to begin at-risk afterschool meal operations?

The four States initially named in the statute, Delaware, Michigan, Missouri, and Pennsylvania, were eligible to reimburse at-risk afterschool care centers for meals beginning on June 20, 2000. The two additional States selected by USDA, New York and Oregon, were eligible to receive reimbursement for afterschool meals in January 2001. The seventh State, Illinois, was notified in November 2001 of its eligibility. The eighth State, West Virginia, was notified in December 2007 of its eligibility.

5. How did USDA help the States implement the at-risk afterschool meal provision?

FNS convened a meeting of the original six at-risk “supper” States (Delaware, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Oregon, and Pennsylvania) on April 4, 2001, at FNS headquarters’ offices in Alexandria, Virginia. The meeting focused on providing technical assistance and exchanging implementation strategies for at-risk suppers. The exchange of information revealed wide variations in the implementation of the at-risk supper component by the eligible State agencies. For example, strict licensing requirements in one State prevented aging public school buildings from being used as afterschool care centers while other States had no licensing requirements for afterschool care centers. Some jurisdictions even lacked health or safety requirements for afterschool programs.

In 2002 and 2003, FNS continued to provide technical assistance through conference calls with administrators from the eligible at-risk afterschool “supper” States.

Comments and suggestions made by the participants of the April 2001 meeting and subsequent conference calls in 2002 and 2003 provided FNS with valuable insight into operational issues that contributed to the development of policy in the at-risk afterschool care component of the Program as reflected in policy and guidance issued by FNS and in the development of this proposed rule.

6. Why does the proposed rule use the term “at-risk meals” instead of “at-risk suppers”?

To emphasize the eligibility for reimbursement of any one meal served to children attending at-risk afterschool care centers in eligible States when they are not in school, we have dropped the use of the term “at-risk afterschool suppers” in favor of the more accurate term, “at-risk afterschool meals.”

The issue was raised whether at-risk afterschool centers in the eligible States are limited to suppers or whether other meals may be served and reimbursed at the free rate under the at-risk provisions. It was pointed out that the statutory language specifies the provision of at-risk meals, not suppers, and that use of the term “at-risk suppers” may inadvertently restrict eligible at-risk programs that operate on weekends and school holidays to seek reimbursement for or serve only the supper meal. However, the at-risk meal reimbursement is not limited exclusively to suppers when an eligible at-risk afterschool center provides care when school is closed, such as on the weekends or vacations during the regular school year.

7. What is USDA’s approach to implementing at-risk afterschool meals in the CACFP regulations?

We propose to track the provisions for at-risk afterschool meals as closely as possible to the regulatory requirements already in place for at-risk afterschool snacks; the CACFP at-risk afterschool snack provisions were published in a final rule on July 31, 2007 (72 FR 41591). This is consistent with the treatment of at-risk meals in the statute; both at-risk snacks and meals are authorized under the same at-risk provisions in the NSLA at section 17(r) (42 U.S.C. 1766(r)). In addition, most of the provisions contained in this rule would propose the continuation of requirements that FNS has previously provided to the eligible States on the implementation of at-risk afterschool meals.

8. What proposed provisions are similar to at-risk afterschool snack provisions?

This rule proposes to extend the at-risk snack provisions located in 7 CFR 226.17a and in other sections of the CACFP regulations to include at-risk meals. These requirements include payments to at-risk afterschool care centers, eligible organizations and afterschool care programs, application procedures, participant eligibility for at-risk meals, licensing requirements, State agency approval, data requirements for determining area eligibility, reporting and recordkeeping requirements, and monitoring. The following is a table that provides a summary of the regulatory provisions that we propose to extend to at-risk afterschool meals in the eligible States.

AT-RISK AFTERSCHOOL CARE PROVISIONS TO INCLUDE AFTERSCHOOL MEALS AND SNACKS

Provision	Description
Eligible organizations 7 CFR 226.2 and 226.17a(a).	For snacks, at-risk afterschool centers must be located in eligible areas and provide afterschool care. For meals, at-risk afterschool centers must be located in eligible areas in one of the eligible States and provide afterschool care.

For-profit centers may not count at-risk children toward meeting the monthly eligibility criteria (25 percent of the children (enrolled or licensed capacity, whichever is less) must be eligible for free or reduced price meals or Title XX benefits).
Eligible afterschool care programs 7 CFR 226.17a(b).	The primary purpose of the eligible afterschool care program is to provide afterschool care, and it must provide education or enrichment activities.
Eligible children 7 CFR 226.2, 226.17a(c)	Children must be 18 and under or meet the CACFP definition of “Persons with disabilities”.
Eligible area 7 CFR 226.2, 226.17a(i)	Eligible area is defined as the attendance area of a school in which at least 50 percent of enrolled children are eligible for free or reduced price school meals.

Recordkeeping requirements 7 CFR 226.17a(o)	In addition to other recordkeeping requirements for CACFP centers, at-risk afterschool centers must take daily attendance and count the number of snacks and/or meals served.
Reporting requirements 7 CFR 226.17a(p)	In addition to other reporting requirements for CACFP centers, at-risk afterschool centers must report the number of snacks and/or meals served each day.
Monitoring requirements 7 CFR 226.17a(q), 226.6(m), 226.16(d)(4).	Monitoring is the same as for other CACFP center-based programs.

9. What new provisions affecting at-risk meals and/or snacks are proposed in this rule?

This rule proposes to add definitions at 7 CFR 226.2 for At-risk afterschool meal and At-risk afterschool snack. We propose these definitions to distinguish the snacks and meals served under the at-risk afterschool component of the Program from the meals and snacks served under the other components of the Program, such as day care homes, adult day care centers, outside-school-hours care centers, and traditional child care centers. At-risk afterschool meals and snacks must meet the same meal pattern requirements as all other meals and snacks served under the CACFP (as described at 7 CFR 226.20(a)(1) through (a)(4)). However, the at-risk meal and/or snack services differ from other meals and snacks because they are served free to all participants through age 18 and are reimbursed at the applicable free rate. At-risk afterschool meals are further distinguished from at-risk afterschool snacks by being limited to the eligible States. These distinguishing factors necessitate the need for separate definitions of at-risk snacks and at-risk meals.

In addition, we propose to clarify in 7 CFR 226.17a(m) the times when an at-risk snack or meal may be served. When school is in session, at-risk afterschool care centers must serve the snack or meal after school hours. On each day of a weekend or holiday program during the regular school year, State agencies may approve reimbursement of a snack served at any time of the day and, in the eligible States, any one meal (breakfast, lunch, or supper). The prohibition of at-risk afterschool snack or meal services during summer vacation (except for centers located in the attendance area of a school operating on a year-round schedule) is unchanged.

II. Procedural Matters

Executive Order 12866

This proposed rule has been determined to be significant and was reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under Executive Order 12866.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

The Regulatory Impact Analysis completed for this proposed rule is available from: Julie Brewer, Policy and Program Development Branch, Child Nutrition Division, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, 3101 Park Center Drive, Alexandria, VA 22302, phone (703) 305-2590. The analysis is summarized below.

Need for Action

The CACFP at-risk afterschool meal component was authorized by the Agriculture Risk Protection Act of 2000 (Pub. L. 106-224), and modified by the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2002 (Pub. L. 107-76), and the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 (Pub. L. 110-161). The at-risk meal component has been implemented through FNS guidelines since its creation. FNS guidelines also govern the CACFP at-risk afterschool snack component; the guidelines for the afterschool snack and meals components of CACFP are largely the same. A final rule for the afterschool snack component was published on July 31, 2007 (72 FR 41591). Relatively minor changes to the regulations as amended by that rule are needed to make the regulations fully applicable to both the snack and meal components of the at-risk afterschool care program. This rule proposes those changes. This rule also contains language that would, when published as a final rule, codify the elements of current guidelines unique to the afterschool meal component.

Benefits

Among the motivating factors to establish the at-risk afterschool snack program was a desire to support educational and enriching afterschool care programs for children up to 18 years of age in at-risk neighborhoods in order to reduce juvenile crime and educational underachievement. FNS cannot quantify the impact of the at-risk meals program on juvenile crime or educational achievement. However, participation in these programs is growing and thus these outcomes are to some extent fostered. In the first four years of the program, growth in afterschool meals served by the seven at-risk States eligible at that time ranged from 2 to 8 percent higher than afterschool meals served by non-participating States. However, data reported since 2004 suggests that this disparity in growth has ended, at least temporarily, and it is too soon to credit the program with a sustained long-term impact on afterschool program attendance.

Although some at-risk meals served afterschool replaced meals served by outside-school-hours care centers, there is also considerable evidence that the total number of children reached by CACFP has increased, to date, as a result of this program. The percentage of at-risk meals that would have been served in traditional child care centers in the absence of the at-risk program is, of course, uncertain. However, it may be as high as 70 percent. That figure suggests that 30 percent of total at-risk participants, or roughly 37,000 children on an average school day during FY 2006, would not have received a federally-reimbursable supper if not for the at-risk program. The program benefits those 37,000 children by providing them with a meal that conforms to USDA meal patterns. In addition, all children served by the at-risk program, approximately 123,000 per day during FY 2006, benefit from the program's structured educational or enrichment elements.

Costs

This proposed rule would, when published as a final rule, codify guidelines governing an existing program component that started in 2001 as mandated by statute. As a result, there are no new reimbursement costs associated with the rule. The at-risk afterschool meals program cost the Federal government a total of $139.8 million in FY 2002 to FY 2006, and is projected to cost a total of $224.6 million from FY 2007 to FY 2011. Costs include both the reimbursement rate that the Federal government pays for each meal, as well as the commodity assistance given to the program. State reporting data do not clearly detail how many additional meals are being served to new participants of the at-risk afterschool meals program that would not have participated in the outside-school-hours care center program, thus the incremental costs of the at-risk meals program are likely small but cannot be determined.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

This rule has been reviewed with regard to the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. 601–612). Nancy Montanez Johner, Under Secretary for Food, Nutrition, and Consumer Services, has certified that this rule will not have a significant impact on a substantial number of small entities. At-risk afterschool care centers in the eligible States choose whether they wish to participate in this additional meal service. Most of these institutions that will choose to add a meal service are already providing snacks under the at-risk component of the CACFP. The additional meal service will not have a significant paperwork or reporting burden because it is incorporated under the existing agreement and Claim for Reimbursement.

Unfunded Mandates Reform Act

Title II of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA), Public Law 104–4, establishes requirements for Federal agencies to assess the effects of their regulatory actions on State, local, and tribal governments and the private sector. Under Section 202 of the UMRA, the Department generally must prepare a written statement, including a cost/benefit analysis, for proposed and final rules with Federal mandates that may result in expenditures to State, local, or tribal governments, in the aggregate, or to the private sector, of $100 million or more in any one year. When such a statement is needed for a rule, Section 205 of the UMRA generally requires the Department to identify and consider a reasonable number of regulatory alternatives and adopt the least costly, more cost-effective or least burdensome alternative that achieves the objectives of the rule.

This rule contains no Federal mandates (under regulatory provisions of Title II of the UMRA) that impose costs on State, local, or tribal governments or the private sector of $100 million or more in any one year. Therefore, this rule is not subject to the requirements of Sections 202 and 205 of the UMRA.

Executive Order 12372

The Child and Adult Care Food Program is listed in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance under No. 10.558. For the reasons set forth in the final rule in 7 CFR part 3015, Subpart V and related Notice published at 48 FR 29114, June 24, 1983, this Program is included in the scope of Executive Order 12372, which requires intergovernmental consultation with State and local officials.

Executive Order 13132

Executive Order 13132 requires Federal agencies to consider the impact of their regulatory actions on State and local governments. Where such actions have federalism implications, agencies are directed to provide a statement for inclusion in the preamble to the regulations describing the agency's considerations in terms of the three categories called for under Section (6)(b)(2)(B) of Executive Order 13132. FNS has considered the impact of this rule on State and local governments and has determined that this rule does not have federalism implications. This rule does not impose substantial or direct compliance costs on State and local governments. Therefore, under Section 6(b) of the Executive Order, a federalism summary impact statement is not required.

Executive Order 12988

This rule has been reviewed under Executive Order 12988, Civil Justice Reform. This rule when published in final is intended to have preemptive effect with respect to any State or local laws, regulations or policies which conflict with its provisions or that would otherwise impede its full implementation. This rule is not intended to have retroactive effect unless so specified in the Dates paragraph of the final rule. Prior to any judicial challenge to the provisions of this rule or the application of its provisions, all applicable administrative procedures must be exhausted. In the CACFP, the administrative procedures are set forth at 7 CFR 226.6(k), which establishes appeal procedures, and at 7 CFR 226.22, 3016, and 3019, which address administrative appeal procedures for disputes involving procurement by State agencies and institutions.

Civil Rights Impact Analysis

FNS has reviewed this proposed rule in accordance with the Department Regulation 4300–4, "Civil Rights Impact Analysis" to identify and address any major civil rights impact the rule might have on minorities, women, and persons with disabilities. After a careful review of the rule's intent and provisions, FNS has determined that there is no negative effect on these groups. All data available to FNS indicate that protected individuals have the same opportunity to participate in the CACFP as non-protected individuals. The regulations at 7 CFR 226.6(b)(4)(iv) require that CACFP institutions agree to operate the Program in compliance with applicable Federal civil rights laws, including title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, title IX of the Education amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, and the Department's regulations concerning nondiscrimination (7 CFR parts 15, 15a, and 15b). At 7 CFR 226.6(m)(1), State agencies are required to monitor CACFP institution compliance with these laws and regulations.

Paperwork Reduction Act

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. Chap. 35; see 5 CFR part 1320) requires that the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) approve all collections of information by a Federal agency from the public before they can be implemented. Respondents are not required to respond to any collection of information unless it displays a current valid OMB control number. Information collections in this proposed rule have been previously approved under OMB #0584-0055. There is no new burden associated with this proposed rule.

E-Government Act Compliance

FNS is committed to complying with the E-Government Act, to promote the use of the Internet and other information technologies to provide increased opportunities for citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Order (7 CFR part 1230) is authorized under the Pork Promotion, Research, and Consumer Information Act of 1985 (Act) (7 U.S.C. 4801 et seq.). As part of a comprehensive strategy to strengthen the pork industry's position in the marketplace, this national pork program maintains and expands existing domestic and foreign markets and develops new markets for pork and pork products. The program is funded by a mandatory assessment of $0.40 per hundred-dollars of market value. A comparable assessment is collected on all imported swine, pork, and pork products. Assessments collected under this program are used for promotion, research, consumer information, and industry information.

The national program is administered by the National Pork Board (Board), which is composed of 15 producer members. Board members serve 3-year terms, but no individual may serve more than two consecutive 3-year terms. Producer members are selected by the National Pork Producers Delegate Body, a group of 163 producer and importer members that represent all 50 States and importers. The program became
