Energy Information Administration

Solicitation of Comments on the Process and Technologies Used for Disseminating the Weekly Petroleum Status Report and the Weekly Natural Gas Storage Report

AGENCY: Energy Information Administration (EIA), Department of Energy (DOE).

ACTION: Solicitation of comments on the process and technologies used for disseminating the Weekly Petroleum Status Report and the Weekly Natural Gas Storage Report.

SUMMARY: The EIA is requesting comments on the process and technologies used for disseminating weekly information regarding petroleum and natural gas stocks in the Weekly Petroleum Status Report (WPSR) and the Weekly Natural Gas Storage Report (WNCSR). EIA has attempted to develop its current dissemination processes and information technologies to meet its goal of providing fair access to any interested user, but has recently faced significant challenges in this area that may require changes in the process and/or technologies used for disseminating weekly data. This request is based on EIA's mandate for carrying out a central, comprehensive and unified energy data and information program responsive to users' needs for credible, reliable and timely energy information that will improve and broaden understanding of petroleum and natural gas supply in the United States.

DATES: Comments must be filed by November 14, 2008. If you anticipate difficulty in submitting comments within that period, contact the person listed below as soon as possible.

ADDRESSES: Comments should be directed to Karen Robinson, Office of Oil and Gas. To ensure receipt of the comments by the due date, submission by FAX (202-586-9739) or e-mail (karen.robinson@eia.doe.gov) is recommended. The mailing address is Office of Oil and Gas, Energy Information Administration, EI-40, Forrestal Building, U.S. Department of Energy, 1000 Independence Ave., SW., Washington, DC 20585. Alternatively, Karen Robinson may be contacted by telephone at (202) 586-2585.

Requests for additional information should be directed to Karen Robinson as listed above.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

- I. Background
- II. Issues with Dissemination of Weekly Reports
- III. Request for Comments

I. Background

Every week, the EIA's Office of Oil and Gas releases two reports, one on the previous week's U.S. petroleum supply and disposition and one on natural gas storage inventories. Together, these reports provide the industry, press, planners, policymakers, consumers, analysts, and State and local governments with a ready, reliable source of current information about petroleum and natural gas.

The WPSR has provided timely information on supply and disposition of crude oil and principal petroleum products since April 1979. The WPSR was initiated to increase available information during a period of gasoline shortages arising from the repercussions of the revolution in Iran. The WPSR describes the supply and disposition of crude oil and petroleum products in the United States in major U.S. regions called Petroleum Administration for Defense Districts. The weekly data are used as preliminary estimates for the Petroleum Supply Monthly (PSM) and the Monthly Energy Review (MER). While more accurate and detailed data are presented in the PSM based on monthly surveys, those surveys do not capture sudden or rapid changes in petroleum market conditions nor do they provide data that are timely enough to be useful in a shortfall situation.

The WNCSR has provided weekly estimates of working natural gas volumes held in underground storage facilities at the national and regional levels since May 2002. Weekly estimates of working natural gas in storage were first provided by the American Gas Association (AGA) starting in 1994. EIA picked up the report when the AGA announced that it would discontinue its survey. The WNCSR relies on weekly survey data from a sample of operators of underground storage facilities. These data are used to prepare regional and national estimates for all underground storage. In September 2007 the WNCSR was designated by the Office of Management and Budget as DOE's first Principal Federal Economic Indicator.

Over time, interest in both the WPSR and the WNCSR has increased. Weekly WPSR and WNCSR results are routinely predicted by analysts, and deviations from analysts' expectations are often cited as moving futures markets in petroleum and natural gas.

As one part of its response to a problem that arose in the release of WPSR data on May 29, 2008, press releases issued on May 29, 2008 and June 2, 2008, announced EIA's intention to open a dialogue to discuss the technical and process challenges facing EIA in this area with users interested in accessing weekly data, including the press, trading organizations and other parties. This Federal Register notice initiates that dialogue. Following the exchange of information with stakeholders, EIA will develop a specific proposal for a comprehensive release process that is both fair and takes account of changing technologies and post that proposal in the Federal Register for comment. After considering comments, EIA will decide on and publicly announce its revised comprehensive release process before any changes are implemented.

II. Issues With Dissemination of Weekly Reports

EIA's interest is in providing fair access to any interested user, regardless of the nature of their interest, whether that interest is commercial, journalistic, academic, policy or general interest. EIA's dissemination process and information technologies attempt to meet that goal.

EIA's current practice is to load the WPSR and WNCSR on its Web site prior to the scheduled release time, behind a software "gate" that prevents access to the reports before the release time. At the release time, the gate is removed, and interested parties have access to the information.

Because oil and natural gas market participants respond extremely quickly to the information, the commercial value of the information is high but decays extremely quickly. The use of automated retrieval programs known as "robots" to access online data in combination with the ability to program trading based on data received by robots through electronic interfaces in oil and natural gas commodities markets (both futures and over-the-counter swaps) creates a situation where small time
