

Falls Development, part of the Bond Falls Hydroelectric Project (FERC No. 1864). The project consists of four separate developments: Bond Falls, Bergland, Cicso, and Victoria. The proposed work at the Bond Falls spillway would take place within the Bond Falls Development which is on the Middle Branch of the Ontonagon River. The Bond Falls reservoir is operated to store water and divert river flow from the Middle Branch to the South Branch of the Ontonagon River. A recent hydraulic study determined that the existing spillway capacity is inadequate to pass the flows associated with the calculated Probable Maximum Flood (PMF) for the project location. To ensure the licensee's compliance with FERC engineering guidelines and safety regulations, modifications to the spillway are necessary. The licensee plans to replace the existing spillway with a new spillway incorporating two larger tainter gates at a lower sill elevation. In addition, the licensee plans to replace the existing low level outlet with a new low level structure incorporated into the new spillway, and raise the embankment crest in low areas of the main, auxiliary, and control dams of the Bond Falls Development. In order to complete construction, the licensee plans to drawdown the reservoir to an elevation of 1455.8 feet North American Vertical Datum of 1988, and maintain the reservoir at that elevation during all of 2010. In addition the spillway replacement construction activities will result in the temporary closure of some of the project's recreational facilities during 2010.

The Commission intends to prepare an environmental document under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) for the planned Bond Falls spillway replacement. The NEPA document will be used by the Commission to identify environmental impacts and to identify measures that would help mitigate the impacts caused by the activities associated with the spillway replacement.
