

concerned: (1) The Commission's construction and application of the causation standard articulated in Bratsk and Caribbean Ispat with respect to its analysis of material injury by reason of subject imports; (2) the Commission's analysis of whether wire rod was a "commodity product" for purposes of performing the type of "replacement/benefit" analysis that the Federal Circuit endorsed in Bratsk; and (3) the Commission's construction and application of the causation standard with respect to its analysis of threat of material injury by reason of subject imports. The matter was consequently remanded to the Court of International Trade. On March 29, 2010, the Court of International Trade remanded the matter to the Commission, directing the Commission "to attempt to comply with the [Federal Circuit's] reasoning, as set forth in its foregoing, more recent opinion, and to report to this court any results of this mandated remand."

Participation in the proceeding.—Only those persons who were interested parties to the original investigation (i.e., persons listed on the Commission Secretary's service list) and were parties to the underlying Mittal litigation may participate in the remand proceeding. Such persons need not re-file their appearance notices or protective order applications to participate in the remand proceeding. Business proprietary information ("BPI") referred to during the remand proceeding will be governed, as appropriate, by the administrative protective order issued in the original investigation.

Written submissions.—The Commission is not reopening the record in this remand proceeding. The Commission will permit the parties to file written comments. Comments should be limited to no more than twenty-five (25) double-spaced and single-sided pages of textual material, may not contain new factual information, and may address only the following issues within the scope of the remand: (1) whether the information in the record would support a determination of material injury or threat of material injury by reason of subject imports under the causation standard the Federal Circuit articulated in sections II.B. and C. of the Mittal opinion; and (2) whether wire rod is a "commodity product" pursuant to the standards the Federal Circuit has authorized the Commission to apply pursuant to section II.A. of the Mittal opinion. Any such comments must be filed with the Commission no later than May 7, 2010.

All written submissions must conform with the provisions of section 201.8 of the Commission's rules; any submissions that contain BPI must also conform with the requirements of sections 201.6, 207.3, and 207.7 of the Commission's rules. The Commission's rules do not authorize filing of submissions with the Secretary by facsimile or electronic means, except to the extent permitted by section 201.8 of the Commission's rules, as amended, 67 FR 68036 (Nov. 8, 2002).

In accordance with sections 201.16(c) and 207.3 of the Commission's rules, each document filed by a party to the investigation must be served on all other parties to the investigation (as identified by either the public or BPI service list), and a certificate of service must be timely filed. The Secretary will not accept a document for filing without a certificate of service.

Parties are also advised to consult with the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, part 201, subparts A through E (19 CFR part 201), and part 207, subpart A (19 CFR part 207) for provisions of general applicability concerning written submissions to the Commission.

By order of the Commission.

Issued: April 20, 2010.

Marilyn R. Abbott,

Secretary to the Commission.
