following general approaches for implementation:
• Work with each military service to customize actions and needs for guidance;
• Take a phased approach to implement NRC’s jurisdiction, including an initial precertification/permitting phase to prepare for the licensing/permitting phase;
• Develop phased licensing/permitting jointly with the military services to minimize impact on the schedules for ongoing work;
• Select high priority sites identified by the military to serve as pilot sites to help develop detailed guidance. Also, identify high priority sites where NRC’s attention is needed;
• Develop guidance to address questions and cases representative of each military service;
• Include guidance in the Air Force and Navy MML letters of understanding and guidance and similar documents developed for the Army;
• Interact with the Army to establish an appropriate licensing approach and guidance.
Topics where additional guidance could be developed include:
• Application of NRC’s decommissioning timeliness requirements;
• Coordination of the military’s use of the CERCLA process and NRC’s decommissioning process in order to protect the public and the environment and minimize dual regulation; and
• Identification of responsibilities of NRC, Air Force, and Navy under each MML.

SUMMARY: We propose to adopt a new airworthiness directive (AD) for the products listed above. This proposed AD results from mandatory continuing airworthiness information (MCAI) originated by an aviation authority of another country to identify and correct an unsafe condition on an aviation product. The MCAI describes the unsafe condition as:

It has been found the possibility of free-play between the mass balance weight and the elevator structure. This condition if not corrected could lead to elevator flutter and possible loss of airplane control.

The proposed AD would require actions that are intended to address the unsafe condition described in the MCAI.

DATES: We must receive comments on this proposed AD by August 22, 2011.
