SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:Background

In 1995 Congress, through the Department of Transportation Appropriations Act, directed the FAA "to develop and implement, not later than April 1, 1996, an acquisition management system that addressed the unique needs of the agency and, at a minimum, provided for more timely and cost effective acquisitions of equipment and materials."¹ In response, the FAA developed the Acquisition Management System (AMS), a system of policy guidance for the management of FAA procurement, and as a part of the AMS, created the Office of Dispute Resolution for Acquisition (ODRA) to facilitate the Administrator's review of procurement protests and contract disputes.² Subsequently, the FAA promulgated rules of procedure governing the ODRA's dispute resolution process by publishing a final rule entitled, Procedures for Protests and Contract Disputes; Amendment of Equal Access to Justice Act Regulations (effective June 28, 1999).³ In addition to the rules of procedures, ODRA operates pursuant to a series of delegations of authority from the Administrator. Over time, the authority delegated to the ODRA by the Administrator expanded to include the authority of the ODRA Director, among other things, "to execute and issue, on behalf of the Administrator, Orders and Final Decisions for the Administrator in all matters" under the ODRA's jurisdiction valued at not more than $10 Million.⁴ Congress provided further confirmation as to the FAA's dispute resolution authority in the Vision 100-Century of Aviation Reauthorization Act of 2003 (2003 Reauthorization Act), which expressly provided the ODRA with exclusive jurisdiction over bid protests and contract disputes under the AMS.⁵ Specifically, the 2003 Reauthorization Act provided at Subsection (b)(2)(4), under the title "Adjudication of Certain Bid Protests and Contract Disputes," that "[a] bid protest or contract dispute that is not addressed or resolved through alternative dispute resolution shall be adjudicated by the Administrator,
