SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

Self-Regulatory Organizations; Chicago Board Options Exchange, Incorporated; Order Granting Approval of Proposed Rule Change Related to Permanent Approval of Its Pilot on FLEX Minimum Value Sizes

August 8, 2012.

I. Introduction

On April 25, 2012, the Chicago Board Options Exchange, Incorporated (“Exchange” or “CBOE”) filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“Commission”), pursuant to Section 19(b)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (“Act”)1 and Rule 19b–4 thereunder,2 a proposed rule change relating to permanent approval of its pilot program eliminating Flexible Exchange Option (“FLEX Option”) minimum value sizes. The proposed rule change was published for comment in the Federal Register on May 11, 2012.3 The Commission received no comments on the proposal. The Exchange consented to an extension of the time period for the Commission to approve the proposed rule change, disapprove the proposed rule change, or institute proceedings to determine whether the proposed rule change should be disapproved, to August 9, 2012. CBOE filed Amendment No. 1 to the proposed rule change, in order to transmit a pilot report, on August 6, 2012.4 This order approves the proposed rule change.

II. Description of the Proposal

FLEX Options, unlike traditional standardized options, allow investors to customize basic option terms, including size, expiration date, exercise style, and certain exercise style prices within certain parameters as set forth in CBOE’s rules.5 CBOE currently has in place a pilot program under which there is no minimum value size requirement for FLEX Option transactions (“Pilot Program”) which, practically, allows FLEX Option trades to be initiated at levels as low as one contract.6 CBOE is proposing to make the Pilot Program permanent.

Prior to the Pilot Program, the minimum value size for an opening transaction in any FLEX series without open interest was: (1) For FLEX Equity Options,7 the lesser of 250 contracts or the number of contracts overlying $1 million in the underlying securities;8 and (2) for FLEX Index Options, $10 million Underlying Equivalent Value.9 Additionally, the minimum value size for a transaction in any currently-opened FLEX series was: (1) For FLEX Equity Options, the lesser of 100 contracts or the number of contracts overlying $1 million in the underlying securities, and 25 contracts in the case of closing transactions; (2) for FLEX Index Options, $1 million Underlying Equivalent Value in the case of both opening and closing transactions; or (3) in either case, the remaining underlying size or Underlying Equivalent Value on a closing transaction, whichever is less.10 There were also, prior to the Pilot Program, minimum value size requirements applicable to FLEX Quotes12 responsive to a Request for Quotes,13 including certain minimum value size requirements that specifically applied to FLEX Appointed Market Makers and FLEX Index Appointed Market Makers.\textsuperscript{14}

CBOE’s proposal will make permanent the Pilot Program eliminating these minimum value sizes by deleting CBOE Rules 24A.4(a)(4), 24A.4(b)(1), 24B.4(a)(3), and 24B.4(b)(1), as well as by deleting cross-references in Rules 24A.9(b) and 24B.9(c) that applied the minimum value size requirements in Rules 24A.4(a)(4)(i) and 24B.4(a)(5)(iv) to FLEX Quotes entered by FLEX Appointed Market Makers or FLEX Qualified Market Makers.\textsuperscript{15}

III. Discussion and Commission Findings

After careful review, the Commission finds that the proposed rule change is consistent with the requirements of the Act and the rules and regulations thereunder applicable to a national securities exchange.\textsuperscript{16} In particular, the Commission finds that the proposed rule change is consistent with Section 6(b)(5) of the Act,\textsuperscript{17} which requires, among other things, that the rules of a national securities exchange be designed to prevent fraudulent and manipulative acts and practices, to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to foster cooperation and coordination with persons engaged in regulating, clearing, settling, processing information with respect to, and facilitating transactions in securities, to remove impediments to and perfect the mechanism of a free and open market and a national market system, and, in general, to protect investors and the public interest; and not be designed to permit unfair discrimination between customers, issuers, brokers or dealers.

FLEX Orders were originally designed for use by institutional and high net worth customers, rather than retail investors.\textsuperscript{18} In approving the Pilot Program, while the Commission noted that it had received several comment letters stating that the proposal would assist institutional customers, it also noted that the elimination of the minimum value size requirements raised the possibility that retail customers would access the FLEX Options market.\textsuperscript{19} One of the risks of retail investors outlined in the ODD\textsuperscript{20} is that, because of the customized nature of FLEX Options and lack of continuous quotes, trading in FLEX Options is often less desirable and liquid than trading in standardized options on the same underlying interest.\textsuperscript{21} Additionally, the Commission observed, in approving the Pilot Program, that reducing the minimum value size for opening FLEX Option transactions increases the potential for the FLEX Options market to act as a surrogate for the standardized options market, and expressed its concern in this regard because the standardized market contains certain protections for investors not present in the FLEX Options market.\textsuperscript{22}

The Commission finds that, in event the Exchange proposed making the Pilot Program permanent, information regarding the types of customers initiating opening FLEX Options transactions during the Pilot Program, to be compiled and submitted to the Commission by CBOE as part of its monitoring of the Pilot Program, would enable the Commission to evaluate how market participants have responded to the Pilot Program and what types of customers are using the FLEX Options market.\textsuperscript{23}

Based on the Pilot Report that CBOE provided to the Commission, the significant majority of FLEX Option transactions with small value sizes have been initiated by institutional customers, while, at the same time, retail investor participation in such transactions has remained extremely low.\textsuperscript{24} For example, the Pilot Report states that of the 551 FLEX Option transactions for non-broker-dealer customers that were initiated below the pre-pilot minimum value size requirement, 550 were initiated for the accounts of institutional customers.\textsuperscript{25}

Based on this usage, CBOE has stated that it believes that there is sufficient investor interest and demand to make the Pilot Program permanent.\textsuperscript{26} On balance, the Commission believes that it is consistent with the Act to make the Pilot Program permanent. Given the current level of retail usage, the potential concerns regarding exposing less sophisticated investors to the FLEX Options market are minimized. The protections noted below, including heightened options suitability requirements, should help to address any concerns about the potential for increased retail participation in the FLEX Options market. Moreover, the Commission is not aware of data or analysis suggesting that the trading of FLEX Options has acted as a surrogate for the trading of standardized options on CBOE as a result of the Pilot Program.

Existing safeguards—such as position reporting requirements and margin requirements—will continue to apply to FLEX Options.\textsuperscript{27} Further, as noted above, under Rule 9b–1 under the Act,\textsuperscript{28} all customers of a broker-dealer with options accounts approved to trade FLEX Options must receive the ODD, which contains specific disclosures about the characteristics and special risks of trading FLEX Options.\textsuperscript{29} In addition, similar to other options, FLEX Options are subject to Trading Permit Holder supervision and suitability

\textsuperscript{14} See CBOE Rules 24A.4(a)(4)(i) and 24B.4(a)(5)(iv); see also CBOE Rules 24A.9 and 24B.9 (defining and describing FLEX Qualified Market Makers and FLEX Appointed Market Makers).

\textsuperscript{15} As a technical change, CBOE also proposes to relocate certain language from the provisions that would be deleted by its proposal. Specifically, CBOE proposes to move from Rules 24A.4(a)(4)(i) and 24B.4(a)(5)(iv) to Rules 24A.4(b)(2)(iv) and 24B.4(b)(2)(iv), respectively, language setting an expiration date maximum term of fifteen years for FLEX Requests for Quotes, FLEX Orders and FLEX Expiration dates.

\textsuperscript{16} See supra note 18.

\textsuperscript{17} In particular, the ODD states that because many of the terms of FLEX Options are not standardized, it is less likely that there will be an active secondary market in which holders and writers of such options will be able to close out their positions by offsetting sales and purchases. Also, the ODD states that certain margin requirements for positions in flexibly structured options may be significantly greater than the margin requirements applicable to similar positions in options on the same underlying interest.

\textsuperscript{18} See Pilot Approval Order, supra note 19.

\textsuperscript{19} Certain FLEX Options such as, for example, narrow-based index FLEX options, have exercise and position limits, but other FLEX Options do not.

\textsuperscript{20} See CBOE Rules 24A.7, 24A.8, 24B.7 and 24B.8.

\textsuperscript{22} See supra note 18.
