Connor Hayden Kraegel, a United States citizen, was convicted of violating the Arms Export Control Act, which has been in force since 1989. Kraegel was found guilty of supplying night vision goggles to a company in the United States that was engaged in the export of military equipment to a foreign country. The export of these goggles, which are considered defense articles under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, is prohibited by U.S. law.

The Department of Commerce, through the Bureau of Industry and Security, has denied Kraegel's request to export any item subject to the Regulations. Kraegel's export privileges were revoked by the Bureau of Industry and Security, effective August 15, 2012, for a period of 10 years from the date of his conviction. Kraegel's conviction is a result of his role in the supply of night vision goggles to a company that is involved in the export of military equipment to a foreign country.

The Bureau of Industry and Security, working in consultation with the Office of Export Services, has reviewed Kraegel's case and has determined that he has violated the Regulations. Kraegel's export privileges were revoked by the Bureau of Industry and Security, effective August 15, 2012, for a period of 10 years from the date of his conviction. Kraegel's conviction is a result of his role in the supply of night vision goggles to a company that is involved in the export of military equipment to a foreign country.

Diamond Sawblades and Parts Thereof From the People’s Republic of China: Final Results of Antidumping Duty Administrative Review; 2009–2010

AGENCY: Import Administration, International Trade Administration, Department of Commerce.

SUMMARY: On December 6, 2011, the Department of Commerce (the Department) published the preliminary results of the administrative review of the antidumping duty order on diamond sawblades and parts thereof (diamond sawblades) from the People’s Republic of China (the PRC). The period of review (POR) is January 23, 2009, through October 31, 2010. For the final results, we continue to find that certain companies covered by this review made sales of subject merchandise at less than normal value.

DATES: Effective Date: February 15, 2013.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

On December 6, 2011, the Department published the preliminary results of the administrative review of the antidumping duty order on diamond sawblades from the PRC.¹ We received case and rebuttal briefs with respect to the Preliminary Results and, at the request of interested parties, we held a hearing on February 23, 2012.

On April 5, 2012, the Diamond Sawblades Manufacturers Coalition (the petitioner) alleged that Korean respondents Ehwa Diamond Industrial Co., Ltd., and Shinhan Diamond Industrial Co., Ltd. and SH Trading Inc., and their respective Chinese subsidiaries Weihai Xiangguang Mechanical Industrial Co., Ltd. (Weihai), and Qingdao Shinhan Diamond Industrial Co., Ltd. (Qingdao Shinhan), sold diamond sawblades into
