I. Introduction

On July 1, 2013, the Postal Service filed a notice, pursuant to 39 U.S.C. 3641, announcing its intent to conduct a market test of a competitive experimental product called International Merchandise Return Service—Non-Published Rates (IMRS-NPR).¹ IMRS-NPR is comprised of Air Parcels or Express Mail Service packages returning to the United States that originate from a foreign territory served by another postal operator with which the Postal Service has made an arrangement for a return service. Id. at 2. The market test is scheduled to begin on or shortly after August 15, 2013 and continue for two calendar years. Id. at 6.

II. Background

IMRS-NPR items consist of returned merchandise that consumers purchased through online retailers in the United States. Id. at 2. IMRS-NPR will enable foreign consumers to create return labels and postage payment to return products back to the United States. Id. The consumer can create his or her own shipping label and send it to the merchant through the consumer's postal channel.

The Postal Service explains that many shipping companies create methods to improve ease of use by creating labels for the merchants and either sending the labels by email to their customers or providing labels for use if an item is returned. Id. It states that returns are an inevitable part of international online commerce, and customers consider returns as an important part of
