2013–2014 Refuge-Specific Hunting and Sport Fishing Regulations

AGENCY: Fish and Wildlife Service, Interior.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) adds 6 national wildlife refuges to the list of areas open for hunting and/or sport fishing, adds new hunts at 6 refuges, increases the hunting activities available at 20 other refuges, and increases fishing opportunities at 2 refuges, along with adopting pertinent refuge-specific regulations on other refuges that pertain to migratory game bird hunting, upland game hunting, big game hunting, and sport fishing for the 2013–2014 season.

DATES: This rule is effective March 17, 2014.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Paul F. Steblein, (703) 358–2678.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The National Wildlife Refuge System Administration Act of 1966 closes national wildlife refuges (NWRs) in all States except Alaska to all uses until opened. The Secretary of the Interior (Secretary) may open refuge areas to any use, including hunting and/or sport fishing, upon a determination that such uses are compatible with the purposes of the refuge and National Wildlife Refuge System mission. The action also must be in accordance with provisions of all laws applicable to the areas, developed in coordination with the appropriate State fish and wildlife agencies, consistent with the principles of sound fish and wildlife management and administration, and otherwise in the public interest. These requirements ensure that we maintain the biological integrity, diversity, and environmental health of the Refuge System for the benefit of present and future generations of Americans.

We periodically review refuge hunting and sport fishing programs to determine whether to include additional refuges or whether individual refuge regulations governing existing programs need modifications. Changing environmental conditions, State and Federal regulations, and other factors affecting fish and wildlife populations and habitat may warrant modifications to refuge-specific regulations to ensure the continued compatibility of hunting and sport fishing programs and to ensure that these programs will not materially interfere with or detract from the fulfillment of refuge purposes or the Refuge System’s mission.

Provisions governing hunting and sport fishing on refuges are in title 50 of the Code of Federal Regulations in part 32 (50 CFR part 32). We regulate hunting and sport fishing on refuges to:

• Ensure compatibility with refuge purpose(s);
• Properly manage the fish and wildlife resource(s);
• Protect other refuge values;
• Ensure refuge visitor safety; and
• Provide opportunities for quality fish- and wildlife-dependent recreation.

On many refuges where we decide to allow hunting and sport fishing, our general policy of adopting regulations identical to State hunting and sport fishing regulations is adequate in meeting these objectives. On other refuges, we must supplement State regulations with more-restrictive Federal regulations to ensure that we meet our management responsibilities, as outlined in the “Statutory Authority” section. We issue refuge-specific hunting and sport fishing regulations when we open NWRs to migratory game bird hunting, upland game hunting, big game hunting, or sport fishing. These regulations list the wildlife species that you may hunt or fish, seasons, bag or creel (container for carrying fish) limits, methods of hunting or sport fishing, descriptions of areas open to hunting or sport fishing, and other provisions as appropriate. You may find previously issued refuge-specific regulations for hunting and sport fishing in 50 CFR part 32. In this rulemaking, we are standardizing and clarifying the language of existing regulations.

Statutory Authority

Amendments enacted by the Improvement Act, built upon the Administration Act in a manner that provides an “organic act” for the Refuge System, are similar to those that exist for other public Federal lands. The Improvement Act serves to ensure that we effectively manage the Refuge System as a national network of lands, waters, and interests for the protection and conservation of our Nation’s wildlife resources. The Administration Act states first and foremost that we focus our Refuge System mission on conservation of fish, wildlife, and plant resources and their habitats. The Improvement Act requires the Secretary, before allowing a new use of a refuge, or before expanding, renewing, or extending an existing use of a refuge, to determine that the use is compatible with the purpose for which the refuge was established and the mission of the Refuge System. The Improvement Act established as the policy of the United States that wildlife-dependent recreation, when compatible, is a legitimate and appropriate public use of the Refuge System, through which the American public can develop an appreciation for fish and wildlife. The Improvement Act established six wildlife-dependent recreational uses as the priority general public uses of the Refuge System. These uses are: Hunting, fishing, wildlife observation and photography, and environmental education and interpretation.

The Recreation Act authorizes the Secretary to administer areas within the Refuge System for public recreation as an appropriate incidental or secondary use only to the extent that doing so is practicable and not inconsistent with the primary purpose(s) for which Congress and the Service established the areas. The Recreation Act requires that any recreational use of refuge lands be compatible with the primary purpose(s) for which we established the refuge and not inconsistent with other previously authorized operations.

The Administration Act and Recreation Act also authorize the Secretary to issue regulations to carry out the purposes of the Acts and regulate uses.

We develop specific management plans for each refuge prior to opening it to hunting or sport fishing. In many cases, we develop refuge-specific regulations to ensure the compatibility of the programs with the purpose(s) for which we established the refuge and the Refuge System mission. We ensure initial compliance with the Administration Act and the Recreation Act for hunting and sport fishing on newly acquired refuges through an interim determination of compatibility made at or near the time of acquisition. These regulations ensure that we make the determinations required by these acts prior to adding refuges to the lists of areas open to hunting and sport fishing in 50 CFR. We ensure continued compliance by the development of comprehensive conservation plans and specific plans, and by annual review of hunting and sport fishing programs and regulations.

Response to Comments Received

In the September 24, 2013, Federal Register (78 FR 58754), we published a proposed rule identifying changes pertaining to migratory game bird hunting, upland game bird hunting, big game hunting, and sport fishing to existing refuge-specific regulations on certain refuges for the 2013–2014 season. We received more than 1,400 comments on the proposed rule during its 30-day comment period. 1,342 of those comments were opposed to the proposed rule, and 58 were supportive of the rule. The remainder expressed neither support nor opposition to the proposed rule but supplied comments. We discuss the comments we received in the summary that follows.

Comment 1: Numerous commenters expressed concern regarding a proposed prohibitive falconry at Bosque del Apache NWR and Sevilleta NWR, both located in the State of New Mexico. The commenters state that we offer no explanation in the cumulative impacts report and no environmental, biological, or other such scientific justification for this prohibition. They contend that falconry is a legal means of hunting and take in the State of New Mexico, as it is in 49 of the 50 States. They object strongly to what appears to be “prejudicial and a denied equitable public opportunity” on the above-mentioned refuges and request that we remove such a bias from the regulations by allowing falconry.

Response 2: By law, refuges may be more conservative than the States when setting individual refuge-specific regulations but may not more liberal.

Regarding policy specific to falconry, Service policy, as outlined in our Service manual at 605 FW 2.7M (Special Hunts), stipulates, “We will address special types of hunts, such as falconry, in the hunting section of the Visitor Service plan (VSP).” In other words, each refuge manager, when developing their step-down visitor service’s plan (which would include a hunt plan, if appropriate) from their comprehensive conservation plan, must first determine if hunting is compatible. Assuming it is found to be compatible, the refuge manager would next determine the conduct of the hunt which might include the use of falconry. A refuge manager has discretion to prohibit hunting, specifically falconry, in certain cases such as if endangered or threatened species are present; thus, this issue is decided individually on a refuge-by-refuge basis.

Falconry for any species has never occurred on Bosque del Apache NWR, so we have not completed an assessment of short-term, long-term, or cumulative impacts related to this type of special hunt. There is concern regarding the potential take of non-target species if we allow falconry at Bosque del Apache NWR. The refuge is particularly concerned about falconry due to non-target bird species listed federally or by the State as endangered or threatened, including the southwestern willow flycatcher and yellow billed cuckoo that forage on the refuge during spring and fall migration. Therefore, we made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Proposed changes to the regulations for Bosque del Apache and Sevilleta NWRs were developed at the same time, and this prohibition on falconry was inadvertently added to the changes proposed for Sevilleta NWR. Sevilleta NWR allows falconry on the refuge, and anyone using this method of take must follow all refuge and State regulations when hunting. As such, we have removed the prohibition on falconry at Sevilleta NWR from this final rule.

Comment 2: A commenter questioned the “rigorous scientific research into the status of refuge wildlife populations” and whether we were using this information to guide refuge planning. The commenter went on to say that a determination must be made that “wildlife are surplus to a balanced conservation program on any wildlife area,” and that “unless the species is damaging or destroying federal property within a refuge, the species cannot be subject to live removal or lethal control, including through official animal control operations.” They believe that “refuges often fail to have refuge specific monitoring of harvest levels,” and discussed the concept of an “inviolate sanctuary.” Finally, the commenter believes that since “25 million people visit refuges for wildlife observation” and “only 9 million visit to hunt or trap” that non-consumptive users should have a higher priority when it comes to use of refuge lands.

Response 2: The commenter acknowledges that the “Improvement Act upgrades hunting and fishing to a priority use. . . ” Each refuge manager makes a decision regarding hunting on that particular refuge only after rigorous examination of the available information. Developing or referencing a comprehensive conservation plan (CCP), a 15-year plan for the refuge, is generally the first step a refuge manager takes. Our comprehensive units of the Refuge System is that we will manage all refuges in accordance with an approved CCP which, when implemented, will achieve refuge purposes: help fulfill the Refuge System mission; maintain and, where appropriate, restore the ecological integrity of each refuge and the Refuge System; help achieve the goals of the National Wilderness Preservation System; and meet other mandates. The CCP will guide management decisions and set forth goals, objectives, and strategies to accomplish these ends. The next step for refuge managers is developing or referencing step-down plans, of which a hunting plan would be one. Part of the process for opening a refuge to hunting after completing the step-down plan would be appropriate compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.), such as conducting an environmental assessment accompanied by the appropriate decision documentation (record of decision, finding of no significant impact, or environmental action memorandum or statement). The rest of the elements in the opening package are: Section 7 evaluation, copies of letters requesting State and/or tribal involvement, draft news release and outreach plan, and finally draft refuge-specific regulatory language. The CCP, hunt plan, and NEPA are made available and request public comments, as does the proposed rule, before we allow hunting on a refuge.

In sum, this illustrates that the decision to allow hunting on an NWR is not a quick or simple process. It is full of deliberation and discussion, including review of all available data to determine the relative health of a population before we allow it to be hunted. In the case of migratory game bird hunting, the Service annually prescribes frameworks for dates and times when migratory bird hunting may occur in the United States, and the number of birds that hunters may take and possess. We write these regulations after giving due regard to “the distribution, abundance, economic value, breeding habits, and times and lines of migratory flight of such birds” and update the information annually. Under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (16 U.S.C. 703–712), Congress authorized the Secretary of the Interior to determine when “hunting, taking, capture, killing, possession, sale, purchase, shipment, transportation, carriage, or export of any . . . bird, or any part, nest, or egg” of migratory game birds can take place, and to adopt regulations for this purpose. The Secretary of the Interior delegated this responsibility to the Service as the lead
Federal agency for managing and conserving migratory birds in the United States.

Because the Service is required to take abundance of migratory birds and other factors into consideration, we undertake a number of surveys throughout the year in conjunction with the Canadian Wildlife Service, State and Provincial wildlife management agencies, and others. To determine the appropriate frameworks for each species, we consider factors such as population size and trend, geographical distribution, annual breeding effort, the condition of breeding and wintering habitat, the number of hunters, and the anticipated harvest. After we establish frameworks for season lengths, bag limits, and areas for migratory bird hunting, migratory game bird management becomes a cooperative effort of State and Federal governments. After Service establishment of final frameworks for hunting seasons, the States may select season dates, bag limits, and other regulatory options for the hunting seasons.

As discussed in the cumulative impacts report (available on http://www.regulations.gov under Docket No. FWS-HQ-NWRS-2013-0074), we took a look at the cumulative impact that the 2013–2014 proposed rule would have on migratory birds, resident wildlife, non-hunted migratory and resident wildlife, endangered and threatened species, habitats and plant resources, other wildlife-dependent recreational uses, physical resources (air, water, soils), cultural resources, refuge facilities, solitude, and cumulative socioeconomic impacts.

Collectively, we estimate that the proposed actions on the 22 refuges with increased migratory game bird hunting would be 12,616 ducks (0.0008 percent of the estimated national harvest) and 2,463 geese (0.0008 percent of the estimated national harvest). In short, we project that harvests of these species on the 22 refuges will constitute an extremely minor component of the national harvests.

We allow hunting of resident wildlife on NWRs only if such activity has been determined compatible with the establishment purpose(s) of the refuge and the mission of the Refuge System as required by the Administration Act. Hunting of resident wildlife on NWRs generally occurs consistent with State regulations, including seasons and bag limits. Refuge-specific hunting regulations can be more restrictive (but not more liberal) than State regulations and other factors to help meet specific refuge objectives. These include resident wildlife population and habitat objectives, minimizing disturbance impacts to wildlife, maintaining high-quality opportunities for hunting and other wildlife-dependent recreation, eliminating or minimizing conflicts with other public uses and/or refuge management activities, and protecting public safety.

Please consult the cumulative impacts report at the Web site referenced above for a more indepth discussion, but in sum, none of the known, estimated, or projected harvests of big game, small game, or upland game species resulting from the proposed hunting activities on refuges was determined or expected to have significant adverse direct, indirect, or cumulative impacts to any big game, small game, or upland game wildlife population.

The Migratory Bird Conservation Act of 1929 (16 U.S.C. 715–715d, 715e, 715f–715r) authorizes acquisition of refuges as “inviolate sanctuaries” where the birds could rest and reproduce in total security. In 1949, this “inviolate sanctuary” was codified by an amendment to the Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp Act (16 U.S.C. 718a et seq.), which allowed hunting on up to 25 percent of each inviolate refuge. In 1958, another amendment to the Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp Act increased the total area of an inviolate refuge that could be opened for hunting to up to 40 percent. This provision is reflected in the Administration Act at 16 U.S.C. 668dd(d)(1)(A).

Note that not all refuges are inviolate sanctuaries. If we acquired a refuge as an inviolate sanctuary, we may open up to 40 percent of that refuge’s area for hunting of migratory game birds. However, if we acquired a refuge without the stipulation that it be an inviolate sanctuary, we may open 100 percent of the refuge’s area for hunting. The Fish and Wildlife Improvement Act of 1978 (Pub. L. 95–616) amended section 6 of the Administration Act to provide for the opening of all or any portion of an inviolate sanctuary to the taking of migratory birds if taking is determined to be beneficial to the species. Such opening of more than 40 percent of the refuge to hunting is determined by species. This amendment refers to inviolate sanctuaries created in the past or to be created in the future. It has no application to areas acquired for other management purposes.

Most refuge hunt programs have established refuge-specific regulations to improve the quality of the hunting experience as well as provide for quality wildlife experiences for other users. Refuge visitor use programs are adjusted, as needed, to eliminate or minimize conflicts between users. Virtually all of the refuges open to hunting and other wildlife-dependent recreational uses time and space zoning as an effective method to reduce conflicts between hunting and other uses. Eliminating or restricting overlap between hunt areas and popular areas for other wildlife-dependent recreation allows opportunity for other users to safely enjoy the refuge in un hunted areas during hunting seasons.

Restrictions on the number of hunters and the time in which they could hunt are also frequently used to minimize conflicts between user groups. Public outreach accompanying the opening of hunting seasons is frequently used to make other wildlife-dependent recreational users aware of the seasons and minimize conflicts. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 3: Several commenters felt the use of lead was inappropriate on NWRs. One commenter cites several studies on the negative effects of lead on both wildlife and humans. They urge the Service to prohibit the use of lead shots, bullets, and fishing weights on all NWRs.

Response 3: Lead shot for waterfowl hunting has been illegal on NWRs since 1998. Lead is a toxic metal that, in sufficient quantities, has adverse effects on the nervous and reproductive systems of animals and can be lethal to wildlife if ingested, even in small amounts. We continue to look at options and ways to reduce the indirect impacts of toxic shot to scavengers. We are and have been phasing out the use of lead shot by small and big game hunters on refuge lands.

The Improvement Act directs us to make refuge regulations as consistent with State regulations as practicable. We share a strong partnership with the States in managing wildlife, and, therefore, we are developing a strategy to reduce risk due to lead in a coordinated manner with State wildlife agencies. We made no changes to the rule as a result of these comments.

Comment 4: A commenter felt that “working public” needs more than 30 days to comment on this proposed rule. In addition, the commenter believes the comment period should be extended since it overlapped with the government shutdown.

Response 4: We believe the 30-day public comment period is sufficient. The process of opening refuges is done in stages, with the fundamental work being done on the ground at the refuge and in the community where the program is administered. In these stages, the public is provided opportunities to comment, for example, on the comprehensive conservation plans, the compatibility determinations, the hunt plans, and accompanying NEPA documents. The final stage for public comment is when we publish the proposed rule in the Federal Register, for which we commonly provide a 30-day comment period.

We make every attempt to collect all of the proposals from the refuges nationwide and process them expeditiously to maximize the time available for public review. We believe that a 30-day comment period, through the broader publication following the earlier public involvement, gives the public sufficient time to comment and allows us to establish hunting and fishing programs in time for the upcoming seasons. Many of these proposals would relieve restrictions and allow the public to participate in wildlife-dependent recreational activities for the first time on a number of refuges. Even after issuance of a final rule, we accept comments, suggestions, and concerns for consideration for any appropriate subsequent rulemaking.

Although the public comment period did overlap with the government shutdown, the proposed rule was published in the Federal Register, and the Web site where the public submitted comments, http://www.regulations.gov, was open during the entire 30-day comment period. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 5: A commenter opined that hunting should be banned on NWRs because hunters will be too selective, only hunting the best-looking animals, shifting the genetic makeup of the whole population.

Response 5: We disagree with the above comment and do not think hunters will have a big enough impact to affect the genetic makeup of a whole population. We are not aware of any information that suggests hunting programs, as they are conducted, on refuges are shifting the genetic makeup of a population. In many cases, hunting is a tool used to manage populations and ensure a healthy ecosystem.

The numbers of animals taken is too small to shift the genetic makeup of a population. Please refer to the cumulative impacts report. The report explains the cumulative impact that the 2013–2014 proposed rule would have on migratory birds, resident wildlife, non-hunted migratory and resident wildlife, endangered and threatened species, habitats and plant resources, other wild and plant recreational uses, physical resources (air, water, soils), cultural resources, refuge facilities, solitude, and cumulative socioeconomic impacts.

Comment 6: A commenter stated, “It already has been scientifically determined that the waterfowl population in Florida is in general decline, due to prolonged drought conditions in that state.” They believe Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR should temporarily suspend waterfowl hunting.

Response 6: Waterfowl regulations and bag limits are created on a national level. Hunting opportunities available to the public should not have a substantial effect on waterfowl abundance or distribution due to low-to-moderate hunting pressure on the refuge, as well as the established sanctuary area (79 percent of the refuge). Compared to other surrounding areas, the refuge only contributes a small portion of the total waterfowl harvest in south Florida (Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission 2011). We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 7: A commenter noted the oceans are being depleted of fish, and, therefore, Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR should not allow sport fishing.

Response 7: Sport fishing is allowed on designated areas of the refuge in accordance with State and Federal regulations subject to the conditions set forth at 50 CFR part 32. The refuge is a freshwater system, and fish in the refuge reproduce rapidly compared to longer lived salt water species in the oceans. Further, most of the fishing at the refuge is catch-and-release; the refuge has an average 90 percent catch-and-release rate on large-mouth bass based on a fisherman creel survey conducted in 2011. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 8: Numerous commenters felt hunting is incompatible with the statutory framework that created Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR, these commenters noted that the refuge protects the endangered Everglades black bear (Rasbuthus sociabilis plumbeus) and serves as the subspecies’ designated critical habitat. Several commenters expanded this thought to state that they believe we would be violating the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, for which the refuge was established, and the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (ESA; 16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) if we allow hunting on the refuge, due to the disturbance it would create.

Response 8: The Migratory Bird Conservation Act of 1929, as amended by the Act of August 14, 1946 (60 Stat. 1080), authorized the establishment of Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR. The refuge was created by two agreements entered into by the Department of the Interior. The first is a general plan with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (now the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission), which allowed Water Conservation Area 1 to be used by the Service for the national migratory bird management program. The second is a long-term license from the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District (now the South Florida Water Management District) that provided for the use of Water Conservation Area 1 by the Service “as a Wildlife Management Area, to promote the conservation of wildlife, fish, and game, and for other purposes embodying the principles and objective of planned multiple land use.” According to the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act, this refuge “shall be administered by [the Secretary of the Interior] directly or in accordance with cooperative agreements . . . and in accordance with such rules and regulations for the conservation, maintenance, and management of wildlife, resources thereof, and its habitat thereon” (16 U.S.C. 664). The Migratory Bird Conservation Act of 1929 states that its purpose is to be “an inviolate sanctuary, for any other management purpose, for migratory birds” (16 U.S.C. 715d).

As stated earlier, the Improvement Act mandates the Service to provide wildlife-dependent recreation on refuges, where appropriate and compatible, and designates six priority public uses of the Refuge System: Hunting, fishing, wildlife observation and photography, and environmental education and interpretation. The environmental assessment, section 7 consultation, and data analysis did not show that any negative cumulative impacts will occur to the Everglades snail kite under the proposed hunting regulations.

The refuge has completed a compatibility determination and has found the alligator hunt compatible based on the current research and data available. Research shows that the refuge can support a limited alligator hunt without having negative cumulative effects to the alligator population or interfering with other public user groups. See the sport hunting plan’s appendix B for the compatibility determination. Please contact the refuge if you would like to obtain a copy of the sport hunting plan. Also, the refuge consulted under section 7 of the ESA and found the hunt is not likely to adversely affect any listed, proposed, or candidate species, or any designated or proposed critical habitat.

Approximately 21 percent (30,000 acres) of the refuge is available for hunting during the season, leaving up to 79 percent of the refuge for alligators and other species to forage and rest (sanctuary area) depending on environmental conditions.

Nesting populations of Everglades snail kite, wood storks, and other listed species would not be significantly disturbed as a result of the action alternative. Snail kite nests do not frequent nor nest during the dates for the alligator season (August through November). However, depending on the year, water levels may be optimal earlier or later for both wintering and nesting snail kites and may fall within the time frame for the hunt seasons. It is unlikely that the snail kites will be affected, though, because of the low density of snail kites on the refuge, the actual number of hunt dates available, and the location of the hunt area versus past nest sites. The refuge’s 2012 Sport Hunting Plan for specific refuge hunt days, which are more restrictive than the State seasons.

To minimize potential impacts to snail kites, recreational hunting activities within the refuge will take measures to avoid active snail kite nest sites. If the snail kite nests are active during the hunt seasons, the refuge will coordinate restrictions and necessary communications with Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission staff and hunters, and “Area Closed” signs will be placed to show the buffer zones whether along levees or within the marsh. Prior to the hunts, the refuge will provide hunters with maps, GPS points, and specific rules and regulations regarding the restrictions within the snail kite nest buffer zones. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 9: A commenter believed there should not be alligator hunting at Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR because the refuge is understaffed and will not be able to properly monitor hunters.

Response 9: This hunt will not take many staff resources, and the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission will be implementing the drawing and licensing of the hunt. Refuge law enforcement officers and officers from the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission will be enforcing the hunts with random checks in the field; otherwise, it will be a self-check. Check stations will be established during hunting harvest periods to ensure hunters are using permits correctly and proper hunting methods are being enforced. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 10: Numerous commenters felt alligator hunting should not be allowed on Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR because it conflicts with other public uses, is dangerous for visitors, and disturbs wildlife.

Response 10: The Improvement Act mandates the Service to provide wildlife-dependent recreation on refuges, where appropriate and compatible, and designates six priority public uses of the Refuge System: Hunting, fishing, wildlife observation and photography, and environmental education and interpretation. Therefore, hunting is one of the six priority public uses accepted on all refuges, as long as the proposed activity is appropriate and compatible with the establishing legislation of the refuge. The environmental assessment, section 7 consultation, and data analysis did not show that any negative cumulative impacts would occur if the refuge’s 2012 Sport Hunting Plan allowed hunting of alligators.

The refuge has completed a compatibility determination and has found the alligator hunt compatible based on the current research and data available. Please contact the refuge if you would like to obtain a copy of the sport hunting plan, which contains the completed compatibility determination. Research shows that the refuge can support a limited alligator hunt without having negative cumulative effects to the alligator population or interfering with other public user groups.

The current hunt boundary for alligator hunting will remain the same as the waterfowl hunt boundary except for opening the perimeter canals, and currently access will be allowed only from the Hillsboro boat ramp. There will be a buffer around high use visitor areas where hunting will not be allowed to take place (i.e., public boat ramps). Hunt dates on the refuge for waterfowl, coot, and alligator fall within the State framework; however, actual hunt dates will be fewer, and there will be time limitations for each hunt day. These are refuge-specific regulations, which can be found in the refuge’s 2012 Sport Hunting Plan. The alligator hunt will be structured like the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission’s program used on the Stormwater Treatment Areas, and will take place as follows: 1 hour before sunset on Friday night through 1 hour after sunrise Saturday morning, and 1 hour before sunset on Saturday night through 1 hour after sunrise Sunday morning, and 1 hour before sunrise Sunday morning, and 1 hour before sunset on Monday and 1 hour after sunrise Tuesday. Therefore, limited public use interaction will occur between hunters and non-hunters given the timing of the hunt. The alligator hunt should not result in any negative cumulative impacts to the refuge, and given the small number of permits issued, only a negligible increase in hunters will be observed. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 11: Numerous commenters felt we should reject the proposal to allow alligator hunting on Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR due to “inhumane” methods of take. The alligator hunt will allow the use of hand-held snare, harpoons, gis, snatch hooks, artificial lures, manually operated spears, spear guns, crossbows, and bang sticks (a hand held pole with a pistol or shotgun cartridge at the end). One commenter expanded this thought to state, “this is horrifically inhumane as it is not uncommon for injured alligators to get loose and suffer for hours before dying.”

Response 11: The methods identified in the rule, to take alligators, are the same legal methods used by the State. Alligators may be taken using hand held snare, harpoons, gis, snatch hooks, artificial lures, manually operated spears, spear guns, and crossbows. Alligators may not be taken using baited hooks, baited wooden pegs, or firearms. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 12: A commenter requested we reject the plan to allow hunting of alligators on Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR due to the disturbance and pollution that gas-powered boats would create.

Response 12: The alligator hunt should not result in negative cumulative impacts to the refuge, and given the small number of permits issued, only a negligible increase of hunters will be observed. Airboats will not be allowed during the hunt, and most of the alligator hunting activity will occur in the perimeter canals; therefore, increased habitat damage and pollution from gas-powered boats due to the alligator hunt will not occur. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 13: A commenter requested we relocate alligators from Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR to Wakulla Springs, where there has been a population decline, before killing them.

Response 13: Alligators are not in decline throughout the State of Florida, or on the refuge. The alligator hunt is strictly recreational, and is not for population control. Wakulla Springs is a State park managed by the State of Florida, if there are declines in the Wakulla Springs area, it would be up to the State or the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission to make that decision.
Wildlife Conservation Commission to decide what to do about the alligator population. Relocating alligators can potentially introduce a different gene pool or diseases to the local alligator population, which may have negative impacts. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 14: A commenter felt that alligator hunting at Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR should be restricted to adults and not include young or juvenile alligators. The commenter cites a study that found smaller alligators were becoming harder to detect during field research in the greater Everglades.

Response 14: Based on previous comments from the public, revisions to the Sport Hunting Plan were made that would make the size limits consistent with those under Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission’s Statewide alligator harvest program. Additional constraints can complicate participation requirements and may be confusing for participants. Making the hunt for the State run will also prevent alligators being caught and discarded or abandoned because they were a few inches short of the legal take. As the proposed regulations did not include any size restrictions, we made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 15: A commenter felt there should be no alligator hunting in Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee NWR due to projected, deteriorating hydrological conditions.

Response 15: The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission will conduct transect surveys within the hunt boundary of the perimeter canals during the spring in order to determine annual quotas in accordance with their standard procedures. In addition to quota-driven surveys, refuge staff will conduct transect surveys in the spring or fall or both to supplement the surveys conducted by the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission and monitor for cumulative effects. Data collected will help managers determine hunt impacts and how many alligators can be sustainably harvested per year. Annual harvest quotas will be determined, in part, using the model Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission uses to set harvest quotas for all State-run alligator hunts. Refuge management will also incorporate refuge priorities and goals into the development of annual quotas. It is important to note that the goal for the alligator hunt in the refuge is to set annual harvest quotas that provide a high-quality hunt while supporting multiple compatible uses, such as wildlife observation and photography, rather than the maximum sustainable harvest. If annual analysis determines alligator populations have declined beyond acceptable levels, alligator harvest will be suspended until populations have recovered. Acceptable levels of decline will be determined by refuge management in consideration of refuge goals and objectives and the best available science. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 16: A commenter suggested we allow the use of electric trolling motors in the Monopoly Lake area of Mingo NWR. They state this change would allow handicapped fisherman more fishing access.

Response 16: Monopoly Marsh is inside the Mingo Wilderness, which is administered as part of the National Wilderness Preservation System. Under the Wilderness Act of 1964 (16 U.S.C. 1131 et seq.), no motorized equipment (including trolling motors) is allowed. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 17: A commenter felt cooperative farmers, who farm at other refuges located within Willamette Valley, will be negatively impacted if both Ankeny and W.L. Finley NWRs are not opened to waterfowl hunting at the same time as Baskett Slough NWR. The commenter states, “I believe if you only allow hunting on Baskett Slough our crops will not survive due to the over grazing by the geese pushed to Ankeny Wildlife refuge and Finley Wildlife refuge.” The commenter felt opening Ankeny and W.L. Finley NWRs will keep migrating geese spread out, reducing the chances of them being infected with a virus.

Response 17: We understand the pressures faced by cooperative farmers on the refuges, but do not believe the hunt will create much change in wintertime distribution of geese, which are the source of the majority of grazing pressure on refuge fields. The hunt would only be open for 6 days in September, well before the arrival of the majority of geese. The September goose hunt would allow harvest only for Western Canada geese, which are currently above population objectives in the Pacific Flyway. Baskett Slough NWR has a fairly reliable supply of water at that time of year and a history of Western Canada goose presence in September. Hunting was considered for cackling geese during the winter season but was rejected because of the potential to impact dusky Canada geese and other wintering geese, conflicting with the refuge’s purposes. As part of our regular management plan, we will keep the geese for signs of any diseases, and will take steps if and when overcrowding is deemed a health or safety issue. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 18: Several commenters oppose the opening of Baskett Slough NWR to hunting, with the focus of these letters centering on the contradiction they see in allowing hunting on a refuge. One of these writers circulated a petition to oppose hunting at the refuge, gathering over 100 signatures, while another wrote, “the refuges first and foremost function is to provide a place where wildlife cannot be hunted or harassed by humans.” A third commenter said that allowing hunting would make a mockery of the protection promise the Service made when originally establishing the refuges.

Response 18: Duck, goose, coot, and snipe hunting was allowed at Baskett Slough NWR between 1969 and 1985. In addition, hunting for pheasant, quail, dove, and pigeon was also allowed in the past. We understand that many people are opposed to hunting within refuges. However, hunting was designated as one of six priority public uses for NWRs under the Administration Act, as amended, in 1997. Though Baskett Slough NWR was established as an “inviolate sanctuary for migratory birds, or for any other management purpose, for migratory birds,” on units of the Refuge System established as an “inviolate sanctuary,” the Service may allow hunting of migratory game birds on up to 40 percent of that refuge at any one time (some exceptions exist). We estimate that fewer than 100 ducks and geese per year will be harvested at Baskett Slough NWR under the hunt. Dusky Canada geese, the focus species when the refuge was originally established, are not expected to be impacted by the harvest, as they would not yet have arrived on the refuge by September. Dusky Canada geese were addressed in the hunt plan, NEPA documentation and compatibility determination.

We do anticipate some minor disturbance to other foraging or resting birds and other wildlife from dogs, human activity, and the noise associated with hunting. Orientation will be provided to all hunters at the start of each hunt day, which will help to reduce effects to non-target species. Similarly, there will be disturbance to other refuge users during the hunt, but less than 34 percent of the refuge will be open to hunting, and hunting will occur on only 6 days per year. The high-use public areas at that time of year (viewing areas along Coville Road, trails in Baskett Butte) will remain unaffected, except for some potential for more vehicles to be parked in high-use areas, and of course the potential for the sight and sound of hunting. We considered this to be a minor effect to the non-hunting users due to the very short season.

The positives are that hunting provides an opportunity, especially for youth, to enjoy a wildlife-dependent use (which is considered a priority for the Refuge System as a whole). We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 19: Many commenters opined that killing wildlife is not an acceptable use for a refuge. Several commenters expanded on this thought and believe refuges should offer safe haven for wildlife. Finally, many commenters believe that since non-consumptive users highly outnumber consumptive users, they should be given a higher priority when it comes to use of refuge lands. One commenter expanded on this thought by saying the viewing public “should not be subject to hunting closures and clothing requirements.”

Response 19: The Administration Act, amended by the Improvement Act, stipulates that hunting (along with fishing, wildlife observation and photography, and environmental education and interpretation), if found to be compatible, is a legitimate and priority general public use of a refuge and should be facilitated. The Administration Act authorizes the Service to allow use of any refuge area for any purpose as long as those uses are compatible. In the case of each refuge that is opening or expanding hunting opportunities in this rule, the refuge managers went through the NEPA and compatibility process, which allows for public comment, to make the determination before the opening or expanding. The principal focus of the Improvement Act was to clearly establish a wildlife conservation mission for the Refuge System and provide managers clear direction to make determinations regarding wildlife conservation and public uses within the units of the Refuge System. The Service manages NWRs primarily for wildlife conservation, habitat protection, and biological integrity, and allows uses only when compatible with refuge purposes. In passing the Improvement Act, Congress reaffirmed that the Refuge System was created to conserve fish, wildlife, plants, and their habitats and would facilitate opportunities for Americans to participate in compatible wildlife-dependent recreation, including hunting and fishing on Refuge System lands. The Service has adopted policies and regulations implementing the requirements of the Improvement Act that refuge managers comply with when considering hunting and fishing programs.

Some refuges close other public use programs or enforce clothing regulations during hunting seasons. This is done through refuge-specific regulations specifically for public safety. We made no changes to the rule as a result of these comments.

Comment 20: A commenter felt that allowing hunting on Shawangunk Grasslands NWR would have an adverse effect on the grasslands and several species that use the habitat, due to the increased disturbance from hunters being allowed to leave clearly defined pathways. The commenter also felt it would be unsafe to allow hunting due to the close proximity of new recreation fields in the village of Wallkill, which is located on a small portion of the grasslands.

Response 20: Potential impacts to wildlife and the current visiting public were evaluated in evaluating the hunting package being developed. The hunt is archery-only for deer only, meaning it is limited in scope. Spatially it is limited to wooded blocks on the far western boundary of the refuge, the northwest corner of the refuge, and the northeast corner of the refuge. In addition to the forested areas, we included a 50-yard hunt-able buffer extending from the edge of the forested areas into the periphery of the grasslands. (We chose a 50-yard hunt-able area because that is generally regarded as the limit of a kill shot with a bow or crossbow.) The refuge system trail and large, uninterrupted expanses of grasslands, where nesting birds and short-eared owls make their homes, lay well away from the hunt-able area of the refuge. The hunt is limited to New York State archery deer hunting seasons. The number of permits issued is also limited. All of these measures limit adverse effects that could be associated with hunting. Hunters will avoid walking in the grassland areas to avoid detection by grazing deer.

Bow-hunting-only hunting zones well away from the trail system, and hunting zones farther still away from our grassland habitat, make this hunt safe in the context of other ongoing uses. It also gives the Service an important management tool to benefit peripheral forest areas, while virtually eliminating impacts to the interior, uninterrupted grasslands. These forested blocks contain numerous invasive plant species, and native understory vegetation is absent. Further, the grassland zone of the refuge has a great potential for supporting rare native plant species; however, although once historically present, these species are now missing from the vegetative community. Overabundance of deer helped eliminate native vegetation in the forest and grassland areas, while favoring nonnative, invasive plants.

The town park that is referenced in the comment has been under construction for a decade. As the park begins to open, we will adjust hunt-able areas, if necessary, to keep safety our top priority. We made no changes to the rule as a result of this comment.

Comment 21: A commenter felt access hours at Nestucca Bay NWR and Siletz NWR should be increased from 1 hour before sunrise to 2 hours before sunrise, to give hunters adequate time to set up for a morning hunt.

Response 21: In response to this comment, we are changing the access hours for both Nestucca Bay NWR and Siletz NWR to 2 hours before sunrise.

Comment 22: A commenter believes the management of predators should be addressed in every comprehensive conservation plan and other appropriate planning documents. The commenter goes on to state, “Predators, if left unmanaged have an adverse effect on the very wildlife the Federal Refuges are in place to protect.”

Response 22: Management of predators is looked at on a case-by-case basis by the refuge manager. Each refuge manager makes the decision regarding hunting of any species on the refuge only after rigorous examination.

Building on Executive Order 12996 (Management and General Public Use of the National Wildlife Refuge System), the Improvement Act directs the Service to manage for “biological integrity, diversity, and environmental health.” Predators are an extremely important component of ecosystems. If deemed appropriate by the refuge manager, predator control may be part of the comprehensive conservation plan or other management plan.

Our policy for managing units of the Refuge System is that we will manage all refuges in accordance with an approved comprehensive conservation plan, which, when implemented, will achieve refuge purposes; help fulfill the Refuge System mission; maintain and, where appropriate, restore the ecological integrity of each refuge and the Refuge System; help achieve the goals of the National Wilderness Preservation System; and meet other mandates. The CCP will guide management decisions and set forth goals, objectives, and strategies to accomplish these ends.

Response 23: A commenter requested a public hearing be held to review the effectiveness of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In addition, they want the formation of a panel for scientific review.

Response 23: There is nothing in statute that requires a public hearing be held to address public comments on a proposed rule. Public meetings are typically offered during public comment periods for NEPA on refuge

Wildlife Service (Service) uses the best available science to ensure the health of a population when making the decision to open a refuge to hunting or fishing. The Service has a robust inventory and monitoring program to inform refuge managers of populations and ecosystem health on refuge lands.

Comment 24: A commenter applauded our efforts to open up 6 new refuges to hunting and expand hunting opportunities on 22 others, but stated that they believe all NWRs should become or remain open to hunting.

Response 24: The Improvement Act promotes wildlife-dependent recreation, including hunting and fishing, provided it is compatible with both the Refuge System mission and individual refuge purpose and mission. Conservation, the overarching mission of the National Wildlife Refuge System, is the dominant use on refuge system lands. Each refuge manager gives the decision to allow hunting on a particular refuge rigorous examination. As stated in our response to Comment 2, the decision to allow hunting on a NWR is not a quick or simple process. It is full of deliberation and discussion, including review of all available data to determine the relative health of a population before we allow it to be hunted.

In addition to the comments mentioned above, we received several comments that did not relate to the proposed rule. We are very open to receiving comments on other issues, but we are responding only to those comments directly related to the proposed rule in this document.

Changes from the Proposed Rule

Based on comments we received on the proposed rule, we are removing the prohibition on falconry on Sevilleta NWR and changing the access hours for entry into Nestucca Bay and Siletz Bay NWRs to 2 hours before sunrise. We have also made several nonsubstantive, editorial changes for clarity.

Effective Date

This rule is effective upon publication in the Federal Register. We have determined that any further delay in implementing these refuge-specific hunting and sport fishing regulations would not be in the public interest, in that a delay would hinder the effective planning and administration of the hunting and fishing programs. We provided a 30-day public comment period for the September 24, 2013, proposed rule. This rule does not impact the public generally in terms of requiring lead time for compliance. Rather it relieves restrictions in that it allows activities on refuges that we would otherwise prohibit. Therefore, we find good cause under 5 U.S.C. 553(d)(3) to make this rule effective upon publication.

Amendments to Existing Regulations

This document adopts in the Code of Federal Regulations all of the Service’s hunting and/or sport fishing regulations that are applicable at Refuge System units previously opened to hunting and/or sport fishing. We are doing this to better inform the general public of the regulations at each refuge, to increase understanding and compliance with these regulations, and to make enforcement of these regulations more efficient. In addition to now finding these regulations in 50 CFR parts 26, 27, 28, and 32 to assist hunting and sport fishing visitors with understanding safety and other legal requirements on refuges. This redundancy is deliberate, with the intention of improving safety and compliance in our hunting and sport fishing programs.

Key:
- *number in ( ) refers to the Region as explained in the preamble to this rule for additional information regarding refuge-specific regulations.
- A = New refuge opened.
- B = New activity on a refuge previously open to other activities.
- C = Refuge already open to activity, but added new lands/waters or modified areas open to hunting or fishing.
- D = Refuge already open to activity but added new species to hunt.

The changes for the 2013–14 hunting/fishing season noted in the chart above are each based on a complete administrative record which, among other detailed documentation, also includes a hunt plan, a compatibility determination, and the appropriate National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA; 42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) analysis, all of which were subject of a public review and comment process. These documents are available upon request.

Fish Advisory

For health reasons, anglers should review and follow State-issued consumption advisories before enjoying recreational sport fishing opportunities on Service-managed waters. You can find information about current fish consumption advisories on the Internet at: http://www.epa.gov/waterscience/fish/.

Plain Language Mandate

In this rule, we made some of the revisions to the individual refuge units to comply with a Presidential mandate to use plain language in regulations; as such, these particular revisions do not modify the substance of the previous regulations. These types of changes include using “you” to refer to the reader and “we” to refer to the Refuge System, using the word “allow” instead of “permit” when we do not require the use of a permit for an activity, and using active voice (i.e., “We restrict entry into the refuge” vs. “Entry into the refuge is restricted”).

Regulatory Planning and Review

(Executive Orders 12866 and 13563)

Executive Order 12866 provides that the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) will review all significant rules. OIRA has determined that this rule is not significant.

Executive Order 13563 reaffirms the principles of E.O. 12866 while calling for improvements in the nation’s regulatory system to promote predictability, to reduce uncertainty, and to use the best, most innovative, and least burdensome tools for achieving regulatory ends. The executive order directs agencies to consider regulatory approaches that reduce burdens and maintain flexibility and freedom of choice for the public where these approaches are relevant, feasible, and consistent with regulatory objectives. E.O. 13563 emphasizes further that regulations must be based on the best available science and that the rulemaking process must allow for public participation and an open exchange of ideas. We have developed this rule in a manner consistent with these requirements.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

Under the Regulatory Flexibility Act (as amended by the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act [SBREFA] of 1996) (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), whenever a Federal agency is required to publish a notice of rulemaking for any proposed or final rule, it must prepare and make available for public comment a regulatory flexibility analysis that describes the effect of the rule on small entities (i.e., small businesses, small organizations, and small government jurisdictions). However, no regulatory flexibility analysis is required if the head of an agency certifies that the rule would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. Thus, for a regulatory flexibility analysis to be required, impacts must exceed a threshold for “significant impact” and a threshold for a “substantial number of small entities.” See 5 U.S.C. 605(b).

SBREFA amended the Regulatory Flexibility Act to require Federal agencies to provide a statement of the factual basis for certifying that a rule would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

This rule adds 6 NWRs to the list of refuges open to hunting, increases hunting activities on 20 additional NWRs, and increases fishing activities at 2 NWRs. As a result, visitor use for wildlife-dependent recreation on these NWRs will change. If the refuges establishing new programs were a pure addition to the current supply of such activities, it would mean an estimated increase of 19,425 user days (one person per day participating in a recreational opportunity) (Table 2). Because the participation trend is flat in these activities since 1991, this increase in supply will most likely be offset by other sites losing participants. Therefore, this is likely to be a substitute site for the activity and not necessarily an increase in participation rates for the activity.

To the extent visitors spend time and money in the area of the refuge that they would not have spent there anyway, they contribute new income to the local economy and benefit local businesses. Due to the unavailability of site-specific expenditure data, we use the national estimates from the 2011 National Survey of Fishing, Hunting, and Wildlife Associated Recreation to identify expenditures for food and lodging, transportation, and other incidental expenses. Including the average expenditures for these categories with the maximum expected additional participation of the Refuge System yields approximately $904,800 in recreation-related expenditures (Table 2). By having ripple effects throughout the economy, these direct expenditures are only part of the economic impact of these recreational activities. A large national impact multiplier for hunting activities (2.27) derived from the report “Hunting in America: An Economic Force for Conservation” yields a total economic impact of approximately $2.1 million (2012 dollars) (Southwick Associates, Inc., 2012). Using a local impact multiplier would yield more accurate and smaller results. However, we employed the national impact multiplier due to the difficulty in developing local multipliers for each specific region.

Since we know that most of the fishing and hunting occurs within 100 miles of a participant’s residence, then it is unlikely that most of this spending would be “new” money coming into a local economy; therefore, this spending would be offset with a decrease in some other sector of the local economy. The net gain to the local economies would be no more than $2.1 million, and most likely considerably less. Since 80 percent of the participants travel less than 100 miles to engage in hunting and fishing activities, their spending patterns would not add new money into the local economy and, therefore, the real impact would be on the order of about $411,000 annually.

Small businesses within the retail trade industry (such as hotels, gas stations, taxidermy shops, bait and tackle shops, and similar businesses) may be impacted from some increased or decreased refuge visitation. A large percentage of these retail trade establishments in the local communities around NWRs qualify as small businesses (Table 3). We expect that the incremental recreational changes will be scattered, and so we do not expect that the rule will have a significant economic effect on a substantial number of small entities in any region or nationally. As noted previously, we expect approximately $411,000 to be spent in total in the refuges’ local economies. The maximum increase at most would be less than one-tenth of 1 percent for local retail trade spending (Table 3).

With the small change in overall spending anticipated from this rule, it is unlikely that a substantial number of small entities will have more than a small impact from the spending change near the affected refuges. Therefore, we certify that this rule will not have a significant economic effect on a substantial number of small entities as defined under the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seg.). A regulatory flexibility analysis is not required. Accordingly, a small entity compliance guide is not required.

Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act

The rule is not a major rule under 5 U.S.C. 804(2), the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act. We anticipate no significant employment or small business effects. This rule:

a. Will not have an annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more. The minimal impact will be scattered across the country and will most likely not be significant in any local area.
b. Will not cause a major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions. This rule will have only a slight effect on the costs of hunting opportunities for Americans. If the substitute sites are farther from the participants’ residences, then an increase in travel costs will occur. The Service does not have information to quantify this change in travel cost but assumes that, since most people travel less than 100 miles to hunt, the increased travel cost will be small. We do not expect this rule to affect the supply or demand for hunting opportunities in the United States, and, therefore, it should not affect prices for hunting equipment and supplies, or the retailers that sell equipment.

Energy Supply, Distribution or Use (E.O. 12311)

On May 18, 2001, the President issued E.O. 12311 on regulations that significantly affect energy supply, distribution, and use. E.O. 12311 requires agencies to prepare Statements of Energy Effects when undertaking certain actions. Because this rule adds 6 national wildlife refuges to the list of areas open for hunting and/or sport fishing, adds new hunts at 6 refuges, increases the hunting activities available at 20 other refuges, and increases fishing opportunities at 2 refuges, it is not a significant regulatory action under E.O. 12866, and we do not expect it to significantly affect energy supplies, distribution, and use. Therefore, this action is not a significant energy action and no Statement of Energy Effects is required.

Consultation and Coordination With Indian Tribal Governments (E.O. 13175)

In accordance with E.O. 13175, we have evaluated possible effects on federally recognized Indian tribes and have determined that there are no effects. We coordinate recreational use on NWRs with Tribal governments having adjoining or overlapping jurisdiction before we propose regulations.

Paperwork Reduction Act

This rule does not contain any information collection requirements other than those already approved by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under the Paperwork Reduction Act (44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.) (OMB Control Numbers are 1018–0102 and 1018–0140). In this rule, we revise 50 CFR 25.23 to provide correct information concerning OMB approval for the collection of information contained in subchapter C of title 50 of the Code of Federal Regulations. An agency may not conduct or sponsor and a person is not required to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a currently valid OMB control number.

Endangered Species Act Section 7 Consultation

We comply with section 7 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.), when developing comprehensive conservation plans (CCPs) and step-down management plans (which would include hunting and/or fishing plans) for public use of refuges, and prior to implementing any new or revised public recreation program on a refuge as identified in 50 CFR 26.32. We have completed section 7 consultation on each of the affected refuges.

National Environmental Policy Act

We analyzed this rule in accordance with the criteria of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) (42 U.S.C. 4332(C)), 43 CFR part 46, and 516 Departmental Manual (DM) 8.

A categorical exclusion from NEPA documentation applies to publication of amendments to refuge-specific hunting and fishing regulations since they are technical and procedural in nature, and the environmental effects are too broad, speculative, or conjectural to lend themselves to meaningful analysis (43 CFR 46.210 and 516 DM 8). Concerning the actions that are the subject of this rulemaking, we have complied with NEPA at the project level when developing each proposal. This is consistent with the Department of the Interior instructions for compliance with NEPA where actions are covered sufficiently by an earlier environmental document (43 CFR 46.120).

Prior to the addition of a refuge to the list of areas open to hunting and fishing in 50 CFR part 32, we develop hunting and fishing plans for the affected refuges. We incorporate these refuge hunting and fishing activities in the refuge CCPs and/or other step-down management plans, pursuant to our refuge planning guidance in 602 Fish and Wildlife Service Manual (FW) 1, 3, and 4. We prepare these CCPs and step-down plans in compliance with section 102(2)(C) of NEPA, and the Council on Environmental Quality’s regulations for implementing NEPA in 40 CFR parts 1500–1508. We invite the affected public to participate in the review, development, and implementation of these plans. Copies of all plans and NEPA compliance are available from the refuges at the addresses provided below.

Available Information for Specific Refuges

We collect information to assist us in administering our programs in accordance with statutory authorities that require that recreational or other uses be compatible with the primary purposes for which the areas were established. Send comments on any aspect of these forms or the information collection requirements to the Information Collection Clearance Officer, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1849 C Street NW., MS 20422–PDM, Washington, DC 20240.
