

in addiction research, and focus on novel, underserved, neglected, complex, or intractable aspects of the addiction phenomenon. How novel is the concept? Does it address important basic or clinical features/effects that are not currently or adequately addressed and/or with a fresh perspective?

2. Feasibility (5 points): Ideas, concepts and the approaches, measures and systems derived from them must be rooted on a rational, scientific or otherwise cogent background that would guarantee a modicum of feasibility given the current challenges and state of the art in the field of addiction. How well does the research agenda describe the gaps in the relevant areas of science that need to be addressed by this new approach/concept to be achieved and implemented? Does the agenda describe a logical, feasible plan and timeframe for addressing those gaps?

3. Importance of the question being addressed/likelihood of impact (5 points): How effective would the successful completion of the project be in addressing addiction, enhancing prevention, or improving clinical outcomes? How well does it consider factors relevant to the ultimate success of the concept? How well does it harness innovations from other fields to the existing addiction knowledge base toward advancing drug abuse and addiction research?

Scores from each criterion will be weighted equally. The score for each submission will be the sum of the scores from each of the 5 voting judges, for a maximum of 75 points. NIDA reserves the right to make an award to submissions scoring less than 75 points if NIDA deems any sufficiently meritorious. All submissions will be held until after the deadline is reached for a simultaneous judging process. NIDA reserves the right to disqualify and remove any submission that is deemed, in NIDA's or the judging panel's discretion, inappropriate, offensive, defamatory, or demeaning. NIDA reserves the right not to award any prizes in case none is found to be sufficiently meritorious.

The evaluation process will begin by anonymizing and removing those that are not responsive to this Challenge or not in compliance with all of the rules of eligibility. Submissions that are responsive and in compliance will undergo a preliminary review by the Challenge Judges with expertise in the relevant areas of science. Challenge Judges will examine all responsive and compliant submissions, as well as comments from program staff, if any, and score the submissions in accordance with the judging criteria outlined above. Judges will meet to discuss the most meritorious submissions. Final recommendations will be determined by electronic (majority) vote of the judges.
