OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT

5 CFR Part 630

RIN 3206–AM90

Family and Medical Leave Act; Definition of Spouse

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) is revising the definition of spouse in its regulations on the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) as a result of the decision by the United States Supreme Court holding section 3 of the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) unconstitutional. The new definition replaces the existing definition, which contains language from DOMA that refers to “a legal union between one man and one woman.” The new definition permits Federal employees with same-sex spouses to use FMLA leave in the same manner as Federal employees with opposite-sex spouses.

DATES: This final rule is effective on May 9, 2016.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The U.S. Office of Personnel Management is issuing a final regulation that revises the definition of spouse under 5 CFR 630.1202 for purposes of the Family and Medical Leave Act. This change stems from the June 26, 2013, decision of the United States Supreme Court in United States v. Windsor, 133 S. Ct. 2675 (2013), invalidating section 3 (1 U.S.C. 7) of the Defense of Marriage Act (Public Law 104–199, 110 Stat. 2419 (1996)). The revised definition establishes in regulation that Federal employees who are in legal marriages with same-sex spouses can use their leave entitlement under FMLA in the same manner as Federal employees who are in legal marriages with opposite-sex spouses.

BACKGROUND

Two Federal agencies administer regulations governing FMLA. The Department of Labor (DOL) issues regulations for title I of FMLA, which covers non-Federal employees and certain Federal employees not covered under title II. OPM issues regulations for title II of FMLA, which covers most Federal employees. Title II of FMLA directs OPM to prescribe regulations that are consistent, to the extent practicable, with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Labor to carry out title I of FMLA. (See 5 U.S.C. 6387.) DOL published its final regulations on the definition of spouse under title I of FMLA on February 25, 2015, at 80 FR 9989.

On June 26, 2013, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Windsor that Section 3 of DOMA is unconstitutional. Section 3 states in part: “In determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the word ‘marriage’ means only a legal union between one man and one woman as husband and wife, and the word ‘spouse’ refers only to a person of the opposite sex who is a husband or a wife.” OPM’s definition of spouse in the FMLA regulations had its basis in the Section 3 language. In response to this ruling, OPM issued a memorandum on October 21, 2013, informing Federal agencies that the definition of spouse used in OPM’s FMLA regulations was no longer valid. (See CPM 2013–14, Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) Coverage of Same-Sex Spouses, at https://www.chcoc.gov/content/family-and-medical-leave-act-fmla-coverage-same-sex-spouses.) The memorandum made clear that, effective June 26, 2013, an employee in a legally recognized same-sex marriage, regardless of state of residency, could use his or her FMLA leave entitlement in the same manner as an employee with an opposite-sex spouse.

EVALUATION OF COMMENTS

On June 23, 2014, at 79 FR 35497, OPM published a notice of proposed rulemaking to change the definition of spouse in the regulations implementing title II of FMLA to mirror the definition proposed by DOL for title I employees. OPM also proposed conforming amendments that would revise the definition of parent and add a definition for State to align with DOL’s definitions of these terms. We received 27 comments in response to the proposed regulations, of which 24 supported the changes.

The three commenters who opposed the changes cited religious and traditional beliefs as reasons for adhering to a definition of marriage that applies only to opposite-sex couples. One supported equal benefits for same-sex couples, but did not agree with redefining marriage as other than between one man and one woman. Another maintained that the Government should not impose this change on States that had previously banned same-sex marriage. The change to the definition complies with the Supreme Court’s ruling in Windsor, which invalidated the language in Section 3 of DOMA that had limited Federal recognition of marriages only to opposite-sex marriages, as well as its decision in Obergefell v. Hodges, 135 S.Ct. 2584 (2015), which held that States are required to license marriages between same-sex couples and to recognize same-sex marriages performed in other States. The change is also in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 6387, which directs that OPM’s FMLA regulations be consistent, to the extent practicable, with those of the Department of Labor. Moreover, OPM’s definition of spouse in these regulations only applies to Federal employee coverage under FMLA and does not affect State marriage licensing practices. We note that, to the extent the commenter is suggesting that a marriage performed in one State should have no effect in a State that banned same-sex marriage, the Supreme Court squarely rejected that position in Obergefell.

Six commenters urged OPM to maintain support for the in loco parentis standard in parent and child FMLA eligibility determinations. Four of these commenters requested that OPM clarify that the regulations will not affect its implementation of the DOL Administrator’s Interpretation No. 2010–3, both in how parents may be determined to stand in loco parentis and in recognizing that more than two adults may stand in loco parentis to a child. in four places within the definition of spouse to make clear that, for purposes of the FMLA entitlement, the marriage need only have been valid in a State at the point in time that the ceremony took place. We believe that the verb tense used in the definition provides the needed clarity on this point where applicable. Therefore, we are not adopting this suggestion.

We made a minor editorial change to the definition of spouse (changing “was valid” to “is valid”) in subparagraph (2) to conform to the definition used by DOL in its title I regulations. We also made a minor change to the wording of the definition of parent to ensure coverage not only of individuals who stood in loco parentis to an employee but also of individuals who still stand in loco parentis to an employee. Because OPM received no comments requiring further changes to the definitions provided in the proposed rule, we are adopting the definitions as final.

Executive Order 13563 and Executive Order 12866

The Office of Management and Budget has reviewed this rule in accordance with E.O. 13563 and 12866.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

I certify that this regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities because it will apply only to Federal agencies and employees.

Acting Director.

Accordingly, OPM amends 5 CFR part 630 as follows:

PART 630—ABSENCE AND LEAVE

1. The authority cited for part 630 continues to read as follows:

2. In §630.1202, the definitions of parent and spouse are revised and the definition of State is added in alphabetical order to read as follows:

§630.1202 Definitions.

* * * * *

Parent means a biological, adoptive, step, or foster father or mother, or any individual who stands or stood in loco parentis to an employee meeting the definition of son or daughter below. This term does not include parents “in law.”

* * * * *

Spouse, as defined in the statute, means a husband or wife. For purposes of this definition, husband or wife refers to the other person with whom an individual entered into marriage as defined or recognized under State law for purposes of marriage in the State where the marriage was entered into or, in the case of a marriage entered into outside of any State, if the marriage is valid in the place where entered into and could have been entered into in at least one State. This definition includes an individual in a same-sex or common law marriage that either:

(1) Was entered into in a State that recognizes such marriages, or

(2) If entered into outside of any State, is valid in the place where entered into and could have been entered into in at least one State.

State means any State of the United States or the District of Columbia or any Territory or possession of the United States.
