The Defect Taxonomy provides a standard approach for all FHA Title II loan reviews for Single Family Housing Programs in order to:

- Communicate clear policy messages to involved counterparties;
- Encourage lending to FHA targeted populations;
- Provide feedback on the effectiveness of FHA underwriting policies;
- Support holistic risk management through monitoring performance and policy compliance of lenders; and
- Identify key performance characteristics, risk drivers and comparative performance across counterparties.

The FHA Title II reviews will include both loan and lender reviews that focus on both underwriting and servicing activities to provide HUD reviewers with the questions to help drive standardized reviews across FHA Homeownership Centers. The LRS will manage FHA’s Title II Quality Control Reviews: Title II test case loan reviews, various Title II post-endorsement loan reviews, Title II lender monitoring reviews, and Title II loans reported by lenders due to instances of fraud and misrepresentation or other material findings (commonly known as “self-reports”). LRS is not designed to manage any aspect of FHA’s standard (non-test case) loan origination or endorsement processes.
