SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Abstract

The U.S. Census Bureau plans to request clearance to conduct the Census Barriers, Attitudes, and Motivators Survey (CBAMS) to measure public knowledge, awareness, and perceptions about the decennial census as well as behaviors and attitudes related to participating in the decennial census. This research will complement previous iterations of surveys designed to gauge public knowledge, attitudes, and behavior regarding the decennial censuses, as well as inform the strategic direction of the Census Bureau's 2020 Census Integrated Partnership and Communications (IPC) Program. While results are integral to designing the 2020 IPC, they will also be used to better understand the Census Bureau's audiences, to communicate with the public regarding other data collections, and to improve our communications and outreach materials (e.g., data products, Web sites, etc.).

Once every ten years, the Census Bureau conducts an enumeration of the United States, Puerto Rico, and U. S. territories populations and housing. It is an extremely complex undertaking that requires the participation of every household in the country, reaching people from the most remote Alaskan villages to the most crowded inner cities. The role of the IPC is to increase public awareness and motivate people to self-respond to the census promptly.

The Census Bureau developed the 2010 Census Integrated Communications Campaign (ICC) in an effort to build on the success of the Census 2000 Partnership and Marketing Program. The ICC was multi-targeted, multi-media, and multi-lingual, using traditional media like television, radio, print, and out-of-home, as well as new media, such as blogs, social media, and other online efforts, and non-traditional media like food trucks, ethnic stores, and restaurants.

The Census Bureau is planning a 2020 Census that will provide more ways to self-respond—paper, Internet, and telephone. To support this goal, the IPC will create a communications campaign with messages and media plans developed for specific audience segments with unique response behaviors, attitudes, and demographics. Targeted messages and the selection of the unique channels that these specific audiences consume will almost guarantee the visibility this campaign needs among target audiences. These audience segments will be developed using 2010 Census and American Community Survey (ACS) participation data as well as measures of knowledge, attitudes, barriers, and motivators to 2010 decennial participation documented in past CBAMS surveys. However, the environmental landscape has shifted since the Census 2010, and the Census Bureau is facing new challenges. CBAMS 2020, in conjunction with the analysis of other data sources, will measure current barriers to census data collection including:

- Distrust in federal, state and local government entities,
- Concerns about privacy and confidentiality,
- Lack of census familiarity and knowledge, and
- Limits of Internet penetration and use.

The immediate purpose of CBAMS 2020 is to inform message development and media planning for the IPC with the ultimate goal of increasing self-response, though results will inform across the board improvements in customer communications where possible. Although collected data will not be used to produce official Census Bureau estimates, the Census Bureau will publish a report detailing results and explaining by whom this data will be used. This report will in no way identify individuals.

Method of Collection

CBAMS 2020 will be administered to a sample of addresses. First, a pre-notification letter will notify addresses of the data collection. Later mailings will give addresses a choice of filling out the survey online or via a mailed paper questionnaire. Non-responding households will be mailed reminders, and flagged-Hispanic households will receive a two-sided letter in both English and Spanish. This protocol provides no follow-up to nonrespondents in person or by phone. CBAMS 2020 will test the use of $2, $5, and $10 gifts provided to sample members to increase the response rate. All participants will receive a monetary incentive, but the dollar amount will vary. CBAMS 2020 survey will focus on the following topic areas:

- Awareness and familiarity with the decennial census;
- Likelihood to participate in the decennial census;
- Attitudinal, personal, and community motivators related to decennial census participation;
- Barriers to decennial census participation;
- Internet use and skills;
- Knowledge related to the decennial census;
- Trust in federal, state and local government entities;
- Civic participation;
- Media use; and
- Sociodemographic characteristics.
