1. Whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information will have practical utility; 2. Whether our estimate of the public burden of this collection is accurate, and based on valid assumptions and methodology; and 3. Ways in which we can minimize the burden of the collection of information on those who are to respond, through the use of the appropriate technological collection techniques or other forms of information technology.

This collection request includes surveys we currently use and plan to use during the next three years to measure Federal leaders’ effectiveness. These surveys all measure leadership characteristics. Non-Federal respondents will almost never receive more than one of these surveys. All of the surveys consist of Likert-type, mark-one, and mark-all-that-apply items, and may include a small number of open-ended comment items. OPM’s Leadership 360™ assessment measures the 28 competencies that comprise the five Executive Core Qualifications and Fundamental Competencies in the OPM leadership model. The assessment consists of 116 items. The assessment is almost never customized, although customization to meet an agency’s needs is possible. OPM’s Leadership Potential Assessment consists of 104 items focused on identifying individuals ready to move into supervisory positions. OPM’s Leadership Profiler consists of 245 items that measure leadership personality characteristics within a “Big 5” framework. These assessments are almost always administered electronically.
