

calibrating international standards. The Board welcomes feedback on current and future QISs from firms both formally, through frequently asked questions (FAQs), and informally via newly instituted QIS outreach sessions, ad hoc discussions, and emails. As a general matter, however, the Board is unable to guarantee the release of QISs for notice and comment because international working groups often require three or more months to develop QISs, and the typical timeframe for the entire QIS process is six months. The full notice-and-comment period under the PRA for information collections is 60 days. In order to alter such a proposed QIS prior to its finalization, the international working groups that develop the QIS would need to reconvene and the development process would need to be reopened. Given these constraints, the Board may have insufficient time to conduct the final survey and analyze the results within the typical six-month QIS timeframe. However, when a QIS template is available in advance of the planned distribution date, the Board works to distribute the templates to respondents early for information purposes, and when time allows, to obtain feedback. The Board has sent several proposed collections to firms for feedback in advance of the due date, including the end-December 2017 Basel Monitoring collection, and the newly proposed Basel III Monitoring Capital and Liquidity collections. Upon receiving feedback from firms, the Board, in conjunction with the Basel Committee QIS working group, often revises the templates and applies the feedback to subsequent templates in order to enhance the relevance and quality of collected data.

The commenter's final recommendation was for the Board to recognize QIS data limitations when applying international standards to U.S. institutions. The commenter noted the example of a QIS for the largest financial institutions in connection with Basel III, arguing that it did not capture the impact of the proposals on all segments of the U.S. banking sector, its customers, and the broader U.S. economy. The Board recognizes the limitations of QIS data and confirms that QISs are a tool that serves as a starting point for assessing the impact of proposals.

The information collection will be extended without revision as proposed.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Guidance Regarding Agency Interpretation of "Rabies-Free" as It Relates to the Importation of Dogs Into the United States

AGENCY: Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

ACTION: Notice of agency guidance.

SUMMARY: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is publishing this guidance for dog owners and importers who seek to admit a dog without a valid rabies vaccination certificate into the United States. Under current regulations, all dogs admitted into the United States must be accompanied by a valid rabies vaccination certificate unless the dog's owner or importer submits satisfactory evidence that the dog has only been in a rabies-free country if it is less than 6 months old or has only been in a rabies-free country for the 6 months before arrival if it is older than 6 months. Through this guidance, CDC is clarifying that it interprets "rabies-free" for the purposes of dog importation to mean "canine rabies virus variant (CRVV)-free." For all other public health purposes, CDC will continue to apply the general definition of "rabies free," which includes and reflects the rabies status of all terrestrial animals and not just dogs. This guidance further describes the considerations taken into account by experts in determining whether a country qualifies as CRVV-free. This notice also informs dog owners and importers on where to locate up-to-date information on a country's CRVV status to facilitate a dog's entry or re-entry into the United States.

DATES: This guidance will be implemented on January 31, 2019.
