AGENCY: Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy, Department of Energy.

ACTION: Proposed rule; re-opening of public comment period.

SUMMARY: On May 1, 2019, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) published a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPR) that proposed amendments to streamline its test procedure interim waiver decision-making process. The comment period for the NPR ended on July 1, 2019. As a result of stakeholder requests, on June 26, 2019, DOE published a notice of webinar and an extension of the public comment period through July 15, 2019. During the webinar and shortly thereafter, stakeholders requested additional time to comment. Therefore, DOE has decided to reopen the comment period. This document announces that the period for submitting comments on the NPR is to be re-opened.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On May 1, 2019, DOE published a NPR in the Federal Register that proposed amendments to its regulations to streamline its test procedure interim waiver decision-making process. (84 FR 18414) The proposed amendments would require the Department to notify, in writing, an applicant for an interim waiver of the disposition of the request within 30 business days (i.e., approximately 45 days) of receipt of the application. Should DOE fail to satisfy this requirement, the request for interim waiver would be deemed granted based on the criteria in DOE regulations. Specifically, DOE regulations require that DOE grant an interim waiver if it determines that it is desirable for public policy reasons to grant immediate relief pending a determination of the petition for waiver. An interim waiver would remain in effect until a waiver decision is published or until DOE publishes a new or amended test procedure that addresses the issues presented in the application, whichever is earlier. If the alternate test procedure ultimately required by DOE differs from what is specified in the interim waiver, manufacturers would have a 180-day grace period to begin using the alternate test procedure specified in the decision and order on the petition. This proposal is intended to address delays in DOE's current process for considering requests for interim waivers and waivers from the DOE test method. These delays impose costs on manufacturers, as they cannot certify and distribute their products while they wait for DOE to respond to their petitions.

The NPR provided for the submission of comments by July 1, 2019. DOE received requests to hold a public meeting and to extend the comment period on the proposal. As a result, on June 26, 2019, DOE published a notice of webinar and an extension of the public comment period through July 15, 2019. DOE held a webinar on July 11, 2019. During the webinar and shortly thereafter, stakeholders requested additional time to prepare comments.

Given the importance to DOE of receiving public input, DOE is re-opening the comment period. DOE will consider any comments received by midnight on August 6, 2019, and deems any comments received prior to that date to be timely filed.

Signed in Washington, DC, on July 16, 2019.

Daniel R. Simmons,

Assistant Secretary for Energy Efficiency, Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy, U.S. Department of Energy.
