V. Summary of Petition: Gillig described the subject noncompliance and stated its belief that the noncompliance is inconsequential as it relates to motor vehicle safety. In support of its petition, Gillig submitted the following reasoning:

1. The potentially non-compliant condition occurs as follows: When the ignition switch is in the ON position, the engine is stopped, the shift selector is in the “Forward” or “Reverses” position, and the start button is depressed, the starter cranks the engine, but the transmission does not engage because, according to ATI, the shifter is in an inhibited state. With the engine running, the vehicle operator must perform four separate actions in a specific sequence to engage the transmission and move the vehicle under power, specifically: (a) place foot on brake (b) select neutral (c) select a gear, and (d) remove foot from brake. Fortunately, because the transmission controller defaults the transmission to neutral after an engine start, there is no risk of unintentional vehicle movement, and thus, no safety risk arises as a result of the non-compliant condition.

Gillig concluded that the subject noncompliance is inconsequential as it relates to motor vehicle safety and that its petition to be exempted from providing notification of the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30118, and a remedy for the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30120, should be granted.

NHTSA notes that the statutory provisions (49 U.S.C. 30118(d) and 30120(h)) that permit manufacturers to file petitions for a determination of inconsequentiality allow NHTSA to exempt manufacturers only from the duties found in sections 30118 and 30120, respectively, to notify owners, purchasers, and dealers of a defect or noncompliance and to remedy the defect or noncompliance. Therefore, any decision on this petition only applies to the subject buses that Gillig no longer controlled at the time it determined that the noncompliance existed. However, any decision on this petition does not relieve vehicle distributors and dealers of the prohibitions on the sale, offer for sale, or introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate commerce of the noncompliant buses under their control after Gillig notified them that the subject noncompliance existed.

Director, Office of Vehicle Safety Compliance.
