Burden Hours: 29,642.

Needs and Uses: The National Survey of Children’s Health (NSCH) enables the Maternal and Child Health Bureau (MCHB) of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) along with supplemental sponsoring agencies, states, and other data users to produce national and state-based estimates on the health and well-being of children, their families, and their communities as well as estimates of the prevalence and impact of children with special health care needs.

Data will be collected using one of two modes. The first mode is a web instrument (Centurion) survey that contains the screener and topical instruments. The web instrument will take the respondent through the screener questions. If the household screens into the study, the respondent will be taken directly into one of the three age-based topical sets of questions. The second mode is a mailout/mail-back of a self-administered paper-and-pencil interviewing (PAPI) screener instrument followed by a separate mailout/mail-back of a PAI age-based topical instrument.

The National Survey of Children’s Health (NSCH) is a large-scale (sample size is 240,000 addresses) national survey with approximately 217,000 addresses included in the base production survey and approximately 23,000 addresses included as part of four separate state oversamples. The survey will consist of three additional mail package experiments. The first test will compare the traditional mail package materials (70% of the sample) against a newly redesigned suite of materials (30% of the sample) that were informed by two rounds of cognitive testing. This redesigned suite of materials is aimed at providing sampled addresses with a cohesive set of items within each survey invitation package. The proposed materials include key facts pertaining to survey data usage, relatable images for the target population, and colors that match the associated paper questionnaires. The second test will determine if envelope size has any impact on response rates. This test will be conducted during the first nonresponse follow-up mailing for the “Low Paper” treatment group and will compare a flat envelope (9”×11.5”) with an unfolded letter against a business standard size envelope (9.5”×4.125”) with a folded letter. The third test will evaluate the use of a USPS priority mail envelope in 50% of the initial mailings. Each test is aimed at evaluating strategies that could potentially increase response. In general, higher response can reduce follow-up costs and nonresponse bias.

As in prior cycles of the NSCH, there remain two key, non-experimental design elements. The first additional non-experimental design element is either a $2 or $5 screener cash incentive mailed to 90% (30% receiving $2 and 60% receiving $5) of sampled addresses; the remaining 10% (the control) will receive no incentive to monitor the effectiveness of the cash incentive. This incentive is designed to increase response and reduce nonresponse bias. The incentive amounts were chosen based on the results of the 2019 NSCH as well as funding availability. The second additional non-experimental design element is a data collection procedure based on the block group-level paper-only response probability used to identify households (30% of the sample) that would be more likely to respond by paper and send them a paper questionnaire from the initial mailing.

Affected Public: Parents, researchers, policymakers, and family advocates.

Frequency: The 2020 collection is the fifth administration of the NSCH. It is an annual survey, with a new sample drawn for each administration.

Respondent’s Obligation: Voluntary.
