

Subpart B—Uniform System of Accounts

■ 31. Amend § 1767.41 by revising entry 119 to read as follows:

§ 1767.41 Accounting methods and procedures required of all RUS borrowers.

* * * * *

119 Special Equipment

Special Equipment items are classified separately from work order items. The USoA provides accounting that differs from that used for other types of materials. The cost of new, special equipment items shall be capitalized at the time of purchase; it shall not be charged to Account 154 as is the case with other materials. The first installation cost, as well as all incidental costs necessary to prepare the equipment for use, shall be capitalized with the material upon purchase. All subsequent costs of removing, resetting, changing, renewing oil, and repairing constitute operations and maintenance expenses. The capitalized cost of special equipment items, including the first installation, shall be removed from the electric plant accounts only when the items are abandoned or retired from the system. Borrowers may request a waiver from the special equipment accounting requirements as described later in this section.

Special Equipment Items include the following:

1. Reclosers and Sectionalizers recorded in Account 365, Conductor and Devices
2. Transformers, Capacitors and Voltage Regulators recorded in Account 368, Line Transformers
3. Meters, Meter Sockets, current and potential transformers, and other metering equipment recorded in Account 379, Meters
4. Load Control Devices recorded in Account 371, Installations on Customers' Premises (See Interpretation No. 118)

Note: Equipment installed in a substation is not considered special equipment.

Special equipment items which are classified as nonusable shall be segregated in the warehouse and retired from service. The Summary of Special Equipment Costs shall be retitled Summary of Special Equipment Costs Retired and used for this purpose. A journal entry reflecting this information shall be prepared and posted to the books. Since loan funds for special equipment, including first installation costs, are approved for advance by the Rural Development upon receipt of the borrower's written estimate of funds required, and not on the basis of an Inventory of Work Orders, it is improper to take a credit for any salvage involved in the retirement of special equipment on the Inventory of Work Orders.

Electric borrowers that wish to receive a waiver from the special equipment accounting requirements should submit a letter request to Rural Development. In order to expedite these requests the letter to Rural Development should state that the borrower will adhere to the following requirements to account for special equipment using the work order procedure rather than the special equipment accounting procedures prescribed by Rural Development:

1. New purchases of special equipment items are to be charged to Account 154, Materials and Supplies, upon purchase.
2. Labor, material and overhead costs associated with the initial installation and all subsequent installations of special equipment are recorded on construction work orders and charged to the appropriate plant accounts upon closeout of the construction work order.
3. Labor and overhead costs associated with the removal of special equipment items, whether the items removed are placed in inventory or permanently retired and disposed of, are recorded on retirement work orders and charged or credited to the depreciation reserve account upon closeout of the retirement work order.
4. The special equipment items retired and salvaged for reuse are returned to the materials and supplies account at the average material cost in the materials and supplies account and credited to the depreciation reserve upon closeout of the retirement work order.

In addition to recognition of the requirements noted above, the borrower should indicate how it plans to account for the items of special equipment that have been charged to the plant accounts but not installed (in inventory). Two acceptable methods to account for this equipment are: (1) Leave the equipment in the plant accounts until the inventory is depleted and charge only new purchases to materials and supplies, or (2) credit the plant accounts for the installed cost of the equipment in inventory, charge the equipment cost to materials and supplies, and charge the installation cost to the appropriate operations expense account. Also, under the second method, the borrower must submit a "negative" special equipment summary to Rural Development to return to the balance in reserve for the current loan the installed cost of special equipment in inventory on the date of transition.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Purpose

FHFA is the primary regulator for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (the Enterprises) and the Federal Home Loan Banks (the Banks) (collectively, the regulated entities). FHFA is issuing this Policy Statement to communicate FHFA’s general position on monitoring and information gathering, supervisory examinations, and administrative enforcement related to the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA), 15 U.S.C. 1691 et seq., the Fair Housing Act, 42 U.S.C. 3601 et seq., and section 4545 of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act (Safety and Soundness Act), 12 U.S.C. 4501 et seq. (collectively, with implementing regulations and other sources, “fair lending laws”). This Policy Statement is intended to be consistent with those statutes and their implementing regulations and to provide guidance to FHFA’s regulated entities seeking to comply with them. It describes sources of statutory authority for actions that may be taken by FHFA and it articulates FHFA’s policies for supervisory oversight and enforcement of fair lending matters. FHFA is also issuing this Policy Statement to provide a foundation for possible future interpretations and rulemakings by the agency for its regulated entities.¹

II. Policy Statement

Fair Lending Policy Statement

FHFA is committed to ensuring that its regulated entities operate consistently with the public interest and with sufficient overall risk management by providing fair, equitable, and nondiscriminatory access to credit and housing. Fair lending is central to the principles under which the U.S. housing finance system operates and is a requirement of law. FHFA will never tolerate illegal discrimination by the regulated entities. FHFA will engage in comprehensive fair lending oversight of its regulated entities and adopts the following high-level policies to guide its fair lending monitoring, supervision, and enforcement. FHFA is committed to interagency engagement, coordination, and collaboration in fair lending.

Legal Overview

While many Federal statutes seek to promote fair lending, FHFA’s policy statement focuses on ECOA, the Fair Housing Act, and the fair lending provisions of the Safety and Soundness Act as they apply to the regulated entities’ activities. This policy statement does not create or confer any substantive or procedural rights which could be enforceable in any administrative or civil proceeding.

¹ As a historical note, in 1994, a number of Federal agencies published a Policy Statement on Discrimination in Lending (1994 Statement) which, in part, described how Federal agencies use their authorities to oversee fair lending compliance. See 59 FR 18266 (April 15, 1994). FHFA did not exist at the time and was not a signatory. In 2008, Congress abolished the former Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight and the Federal Housing Finance Board, which had been parties to the 1994 Statement. In their place, Congress established FHFA with authorities that, in contrast to its predecessor agencies, include overseeing Enterprise and Bank compliance with applicable law. 12 U.S.C. 4511(b) (FHFA “shall have general regulatory authority over each regulated entity . . . and shall exercise such general regulatory authority . . . to ensure that the purposes of this Act, the authorizing statutes, and any other applicable law are carried out”). Given the importance of fair lending compliance, FHFA is publishing this FHFA Policy Statement on Fair Lending to implement its authorities and articulate agency activities in relevant areas including monitoring, examination, enforcement, and coordination to oversee regulated entity fair lending compliance.

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s (CFPB) Regulation B, 12 CFR part 1002, along with Official Interpretations in Supplement I to 12 CFR part 1002, implements ECOA.² The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development’s (HUD) regulations at 24 CFR part 100 implement the Fair Housing Act. Together, these statutes and regulations prohibit discrimination on the basis of race or color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, age (provided the applicant has the capacity to contract), receipt of income derived from any public assistance program, exercise, in good faith, of any right under the Consumer Credit Protection Act, familial status (defined by 42 U.S.C. 3602(k) of the Fair Housing Act as children under the age of 18 living with a parent or legal custodian, pregnant women, and people securing custody of children under 18), and disability.³

The Enterprises are also subject to section 4545 of the Safety and Soundness Act, which requires HUD, by regulation, to prohibit the Enterprises from discriminating in the purchase of mortgages on the bases of race, color, religion, sex, disability, familial status, age, or national origin, including any consideration of the age or location of the dwelling or the age of the neighborhood or census tract where the dwelling is located in a manner that has a discriminatory effect.⁴

FHFA also recognizes that there are a number of applicable and relevant sources of fair lending law and guidance, including judicial decisions, administrative interpretations and guidance, and administrative actions.

Fair Lending Oversight Considerations

FHFA has broad statutory authority to supervise the regulated entities, including authority to monitor and gather information, conduct supervisory examinations, and enforce compliance with law where appropriate. FHFA monitors regulated entities for fair lending risk, conducts supervisory examinations, and, when necessary, ² The Federal Reserve Board of Governors also implements ECOA through a regulation covering auto dealers.

³ The Fair Housing Act uses the term “handicap” instead of “disability.” This document uses the term “disability,” which is more generally accepted. See Joint Statement of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Justice on Accessibility (Design and Construction) Requirements for Covered Multifamily Dwellings under the Fair Housing Act, April 30, 2013, available at <https://www.hud.gov/sites/documents/JOINTSTATEMENT.PDF> (citing Bragdon v. Abbott, 524 U.S. 624, 631 (1998), to say that both terms have the same legal meaning).

takes enforcement action to ensure compliance with fair lending laws.

Monitoring and Information Gathering

FHFA regularly monitors the fair lending risk presented by Enterprise and Bank activities and may request data and information in its role as supervisor and regulator to ensure effective, ongoing oversight. FHFA reviews the regulated entities' internal fair lending data monitoring, risk assessments, policies and procedures, internal control systems, and other information to appropriately scope monitoring and examinations commensurate with fair lending risk. Fair lending monitoring information may be collected pursuant to FHFA's supervisory and regulatory authority, including 12 U.S.C. 4514(a) which authorizes FHFA to order regulated entities to submit both regular and special reports. FHFA may require regulated entities to submit "regular reports . . . on the condition (including financial condition), management, activities, or operations of the regulated entity, as the Director considers appropriate."⁵ Fair lending monitoring information includes, but is not limited to: Data and other information necessary to monitor and evaluate the policies, programs, and activities of the regulated entities; information about changes in policies, programs, and activities; information about the regulated entities' fair lending testing and other compliance activities; and the regulated entities' self-evaluations of fair lending risk and the compliance of their policies, programs, and activities with respect to fair lending laws.

Supervisory Examinations

FHFA has broad authority to supervise the Enterprises and the Banks for compliance with fair lending standards. The regulated entities are subject to FHFA's overarching "supervision and regulation."⁶ FHFA may conduct examinations of the regulated entities whenever FHFA determines that an examination is necessary or appropriate.⁷ FHFA examiners have examination authority equivalent to other Federal prudential regulators.⁸ FHFA also has a duty to ensure that the regulated entities are operating consistently with the public interest.⁹

FHFA conducts risk-based fair lending examinations of the regulated entities. FHFA's fair lending oversight program is committed to effective, appropriately tailored supervisory measures to ensure that the regulated entities adhere to applicable fair lending compliance standards. The Enterprises and the Banks each engage in activities that present differing levels and kinds of fair lending risk. FHFA carefully weighs the totality of available information, including monitoring information, market intelligence, and relevant data, when considering how best to employ supervisory resources.

Enforcement

FHFA may use its administrative enforcement authority to address violations of ECOA and the Fair Housing Act by the regulated entities. That a regulated entity is in conservatorship does not preclude other enforcement actions; however, the conservator's broad statutory powers may provide FHFA with more efficient means to address problems than traditional enforcement tools. FHFA as conservator may take immediate action, consistent with applicable law, to direct or restrict the activities at the regulated entity, including the activities of the board of directors and executive management.

FHFA has broader enforcement authority than its predecessor agencies FHFB and OFHEO, including for fair lending violations. The Housing and Economic Recovery Act (HERA)¹⁰ granted FHFA the authority to use cease and desist orders to enforce violations of all applicable laws, including ECOA and the Fair Housing Act.¹¹ FHFA may also use civil money penalties as a tool to ensure fair lending compliance, where the statutory bases for such penalties are present.¹²

⁸ 12 U.S.C. 4517(e). The statute particularly references the authority of examiners employed by the Federal Reserve banks.

⁹ 12 U.S.C. 4513(a)(1)(B)(v).

¹⁰ The Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (HERA), Public Law 110-289 (July 30, 2008), available at <https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/PLAW-110publ289/pdf/PLAW-110publ289.pdf>.

¹¹ Public Law 110-289, sec. 1101 (amended the former OFHEO authorities to provide the new FHFA general supervisory and regulatory authority requiring regulated entity compliance with the Safety and Soundness Act, the regulated entities statutory charters, and "any other applicable law"); sec. 1151 (amended cease and desist authorities to include violations of law generally); codified at 12 U.S.C. 4511 and 4631.

¹² 12 U.S.C. 4636.

Prior to HERA, OFHEO's fair lending enforcement authority over the Enterprises was limited to the Safety and Soundness Act fair housing provision and HUD's implementing regulation.¹³ HUD's implementing regulation anticipates HUD referring violations and potential violations of that provision by an Enterprise to FHFA for enforcement.¹⁴ FHFA will support enforcement of HUD's regulation implementing the Safety and Soundness Act's fair housing provision. FHFA will conduct a full review of HUD's referral of a violation or potential violation and all evidence submitted as part of the referral and resolve the matter appropriately and in accordance with FHFA's enforcement policy and in consultation with HUD. In addition, FHFA will continue to facilitate HUD's periodic fair lending reviews of the Enterprises. FHFA may also independently pursue administrative enforcement actions for any violations of section 4545 of the Safety and Soundness Act.

FHFA's enforcement policy applies when taking any enforcement action against regulated entities for violations of law, including violations of fair lending law.¹⁵ Pursuant to FHFA's enforcement policy, FHFA may engage in consent order negotiations with regulated entities to resolve violations of fair lending laws.¹⁶ FHFA is not required by statute to refer potential fair lending violations to the Attorney General when the agency has a reason to believe that a regulated entity has engaged in a pattern or practice of discouraging or denying applications for credit.¹⁷ Nevertheless, FHFA will consult with and refer matters to the Attorney General and coordinate with the Department of Justice on enforcement of fair lending matters as appropriate.

¹³ See 24 CFR 81.47(a).

¹⁴ 24 CFR 81.47(a). Under the Safety and Soundness Act, FHFA is empowered to initiate enforcement actions for Enterprise violations of 12 U.S.C. 4545 and HUD's implementing regulations. The process for referring "violations or potential violations" to FHFA under 24 CFR 81.47(a) is distinct from the process under 24 CFR 81.47(b), in which HUD shall conduct an investigation of the Fair Housing Act complaint, make a determination as to whether or not reasonable cause exists to believe discrimination occurred, and, if it does, proceed to enforcement under the Fair Housing Act.

FHFA will consider whether the regulated entity has conducted any self-evaluations or undertaken any corrective actions when making supervisory and enforcement decisions. FHFA will view responsible business practices such as self-testing, implementation of management controls, and voluntary remedial action favorably when making fair lending supervisory and enforcement determinations. In particular, FHFA commits to taking into consideration an entity's cooperation and candor during examinations and monitoring. Regulated entities are not required to self-report potential violations of fair lending laws. However, self-reporting of violations of fair lending laws will be viewed favorably by FHFA as it exercises its discretion. FHFA also considers the number and duration of violations identified, the nature of the evidence of discrimination (i.e., overt discrimination, disparate treatment, or disparate impact), the pervasiveness of the discrimination, the presence and effectiveness of any anti-discrimination policies, any history of discriminatory conduct, any corrective measures implemented or proposed by the regulated entity, and any other factors for determining the appropriateness of any potential action.

Consideration of Differences Between the Banks and the Enterprises

FHFA recognizes the important distinctions between the two types of regulated entities, the Enterprises and the Banks. In drafting this Policy Statement, FHFA has considered the differences between the Enterprises and the Banks with respect to the Banks' cooperative ownership structure, mission of providing liquidity to members, affordable housing and community development mission, capital structure, and joint and several liability, as well as other applicable differences.¹⁸

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

The EASA, which is the Technical Agent for the Member States of the European Union, has issued EASA AD 2021-0040, dated January 27, 2021 (EASA AD 2021-0040) (also referred to as the Mandatory Continuing Airworthiness Information, or the MCAI), to correct an unsafe condition for certain Leonardo S.p.a. Model AW119 MKII helicopters.

This AD was prompted by reports of detected smoke and burning smell during flight, caused by chafing of electrical wiring. The FAA is issuing this AD to address detected smoke, burning smell during flight, and chafing of electrical wiring, which could lead to further occurrences of smoke in the cabin, or loss of function of avionics equipment, and possibly result in reduced control of the helicopter. See the MCAI for additional background information.
