entities. Primary wood-using mills are facilities that use roundwood to manufacture a primary product, such as lumber, wood pulp, veneer, etc. Forest Service personnel evaluate the information collected and use it to monitor volume of roundwood harvested throughout the Nation by primary product type, tree species, and origin. The information gathered is not available from other sources and provides baseline data for resource analyses, which are a key component in the formulation of forestry programs, industrial expansion decisions, and forest policy. Primary wood industry questionnaires are delivered to mills via regular mail or through email. Responses are collected through email, regular mail, phone interviews, or personal mill visits.

Logging Operations Questionnaire: This questionnaire is used by the Forest Service to collect and evaluate information from logging operations to help characterize the logging industry and its response to outside influences. The information is used to measure the ‘health’ of the logging industry as well as to provide background information for decision-making. The logging operations questionnaire is administered in person by field personnel during tree utilization data collection at sampled logging sites.

For this extension, we are proposing to revise the questionnaire for the primary wood industry survey to simplify the format and eliminate questions that are no longer needed. At the same time, we propose to test a few survey mechanisms that could help improve survey response and lower respondents’ burden by piloting various survey structures including different questionnaire lengths (e.g., a three-question post-card or a short version of the traditional survey). We also propose using a cognitive survey to assess respondent’s understanding of the survey questions and to identify areas of potential clarification. These proposed tests are in direct response to comments and improving the quality of data obtained. The results of these efforts contribute to the availability of reliable information on
